TRUCKER DIES IN LEAP FOR SAFETY

Reds Brutally Beat U. S. Envoy

Official Blasts Treatment

'Apology' Due To Abuse

SHANGHAI—(AP)— U. S. Vice Consul William M. Olive, who was released Saturday by police of this communist city after three days in jail, "was utterly, brutally beaten." Consul General John Cabot, declared.

The communist Liberation Daily published a statement attributed to Olive that "I have not received any ill-treatment during my detention."

"Any statement such as that which appeared in the Liberation Daily was obtained from him as a result of the barbarous treatment he received," Cabot asserted in a press conference late Saturday.

(This dispatch was more than 12 hours in transmission, apparently having been held up by communist military censorship.)

Olive, 32, of Ironton, Mo., was arrested last Wednesday when his consulate jeep got involved in a mass parade in which the communists were observing the 12th anniversary of the Japanese war and the third anniversary of the civil war.

Cabot, his superior, said Olive was released Saturday, after being beaten, handcuffed incommunicado in a cell for three days, and forced to sign several statements, a "confession," and an "apology."

NO DOUBT AT ALL

"I have personally seen Olive's injuries," said Cabot. We had him examined medically, and have taken photographs and will take x-rays.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that Olive was brutally beaten by the police."

The consul general said that, "on the other hand, I am gratified and reassured that higher authorities — when the matter was brought to their attention— arranged for his speedy release."

(The U. S. State department had dirtected strong protests to be made to high communist authorities by both the consulate and the Nanking embassy, even though the United States has no diplomatic relations with the Chinese communists.)

The consulate physician who examined Olive said his condition was "soreness of all muscles and joints, 20 bruises, contusions and abrasions, evidence of some internal injuries, and some increase in temperature and a higher pulse rate.

Olive, in a highly nervous and emotional state, is under the physician's care. He did not see reporters. Cabot explained earlier that he would not let Olive make any comment as "it might endanger him."

Rescue One, 3 Drowned

ERIE Pa — (AP) — Fishermen rescued a 35-year-old man who clung to the edge of his capsized boat for six hours after his bride of a week and two others had drowned in the storm chopped waters of Lake Erie.

Ten other persons were picked up by fishermen and the coast guard as a result of a sudden squall that upset several small boats.

Suffering from prostration and shock, Harry K Gitchell of nearby Harbor Creek told of the midnight fishing excursion that ended in tragedy.

Gitchell said the squall blew up on the lake a short time after he, his wife, Florence, 30, Miss Hanna Maas, and Robert Wagnett, 20, went out in a motor boat.

"The outboard motor filled with water," he said. "I called to a boat passing by and asked them to contact the coast guard. They said they would, then they disappeared in the dark. Waves filled the boat. The gasoline lantern went out. It was dark. We managed to don life preservers before the boat capsized.

"We clung to the edge of the boat, talking in the dark. After awhile no one talked any more. When dawn came I found I was alone. I guess the others slipped away."

'Kathy' Tragedy Averted

CAMDEN, N. J. —(AP)— A baby toddling about the yard of his home tumbled into a narrow, 10-foot-deep hole Saturday.

Ten-month-old Howard Morgan jr., was rescued, apparently unharmed. A hushed crowd of more than 100, remembering the Kathy Fiscus tragedy, watched the child's father lead the crew of volunteer rescuers.

Howard was brought to West Jersey hospital here and placed temporarily in an oxygen tent as a precautionary measure. He apparently suffered only a few scratches.

Firemen and volunteers dug a tunnel parallel to the hole to free the child. His mother, 19-year-old Mrs. Howard Morgan, told a reporter:

"It was wonderful the way total strangers worked to help save our child. I'll never be able to thank everyone enough."

STIRS MEMORIES

For a time the accident in suburban Chews Landing stirred memories of the tragic death of little Kathy Fiscus who fell into an abandoned well in California April 8. Hundreds of men worked for 52 hours in a vain effort to rescue her.

The boy's father had dug the hole, about a foot wide, to bring electricity to the family bungalow in the little community across the Delaware river from Philadelphia.

He placed a board over the hole, then left for a few moments and somehow the board was dislodged.

Howard and his brother Richard, 2, had been playing in the yard. Shortly after 10 a. m. Mrs. Morgan looked for them.

"I saw Howard in the hole, crying," she said. Only his head was above the ground. As I ran to get him he slid down into it."

A police radio called for aid. Even before workers arrived the frantic father was clawing at the ground with his bare hands in an attempt to reach the boy.

An hour and one-half later the parallel tunnel was completed and with great care the rescuers dug into the hole to release the trapped child.

Sweep Sea For Victims

NORFOLK, Va. —(AP)— Planes and ships searched the Atlantic 400 miles east of Charleston, S. C., today for crewmen who reportedly abandoned their burning merchant vessel.

The coast guard cutter Mendota reported from her Atlantic weather station that she received an S-O-S from an unidentified merchant ship. The message said fire in the engine room was raging out of control and the crew was abandoning ship.

The number of men in the crew was not given.

Two coast guard planes were dispatched from Elizabeth City, N. J., and the U. S. Air Force sent one plane from Bermuda. The coast guard ordered to the area the Mendota and the cutter Matagorda, which was en route from the mainland to Bermuda.

Bermuda headquarters of the coast guard's search and rescue service reported that three planes and three surface vessels had arrived in the area but had not sighted the ship or her crew.

A B-17 patrol plane from Elizabeth City was the first to reach the position given by the stricken ship. The plane reported it had not sighted the ship or crew.

Triplets 'Floor' College Student

MADISON, Wis —(AP)— "They sure are small but there are a lot of them," commented Eugene Stephan Saturday as he met three new members of his family.

The triplets, born prematurely during the night, are the first children of Stephan and his wife, Betty, 23. "I hope they'll be the last," added the father, a 24-year-old University of Wisconsin student.

FOND FAREWELL—Almost too reminiscent of war days is this scene near the Mansfield rail road depot. Saying goodbye in typical Air Force fashion are Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Etzwiler, 125 Flint street (left) and Mr. and Mrs. Kent Nislander, Mansfield, R. D. 6. After the fond parting, the two men joined their companions of the 164th Air National Guard Fighter squadron to board the train which took them yesterday to their encampment at Dover, Delaware. (See story on Page 15).

Floggers Indicted

Jury Indicts 14 In Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(AP)— A grand jury Saturday charged 14 persons with taking part in hooded hoodlumism in the Birmingham area recently.

The county jury returned 44 indictments after a special session called to investigate night riding activities. It recommended that the inquiry be continued by a new jury to be organized Monday.

Arrests of those indicted will begin Monday.

This action climaxed a month of investigating acts by robed and hooded bands. These included floggings, cross burnings and threats of further violence.

Ku Klux Klan officials denied their order had anything to do with the law violations. One of them, William Hugh Morris, was jailed for two days beginning Thursday for refusing to bring Klan records before the jury. He is director of the Federated Ku Klux Klans, Incorporated.

Morris was allowed $500 bond after he agreed to appear before the new grand jury. If he refuses again to produce the records, he could be brought into court again.

Some of those indicted were charged on more than one count.

Explosion Rocks Pacific Coast

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— An explosion or light earthquake rocked southern sectors of Los Angeles and suburban Inglewood last night. The tremor was felt as far south as the Long Beach airport, where it was described as light.

The Inglewood police said they were investigating.

Bloodmobile Here Two Days

More Blood Donors Needed to Fill Quota

Only 90 donors had signed up Saturday to donate blood through the Red Cross bloodmobile unit that will be here Monday and Tuesday.

"It is not too late to make appointments to donate blood on Monday and donors can donate blood on Tuesday without an appointment," Mrs. Stuart M. Weaver, chairman of the Blood Service committee, said yesterday.

Mrs. Weaver estimated that it will require about 280 donors to fill the quota of 200 pints for the visit. Unless we have a great increase in the number of donors at the last minute, we will again fall short of our quota," Mrs. Weaver added.

The blood obtained during the two-day visit of the bloodmobile will be sent to Columbus to be typed and examined and then returned for use in Richland county hospitals.

The bloodmobile will be stationed at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Park avenue west, across from the Red Cross chapter house. Donors can give blood from noon Monday until 6 p. m., and from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m., Tuesday.

The bloodmobile visits Mansfield every five weeks from the blood center in Columbus. In addition to a physician and technicians about 12 Mansfield volunteers will work as nurses aides, staff aides, motor service workers and canteen workers.

"I want to make it clear that donors do not donate the blood to the Red Cross—they give it to their community. The Red Cross serves only as a collection agency for the blood," Mrs. Weaver pointed out.

The Columbus blood center separates some of the blood into "fractions" which is used in delicate brain surgery, in treating measles and in giving transfusions to bleeders. All of the blood that the Richland County hospitals receive is whole blood, however, as not enough blood is donated to allow for the preparations of the blood "fractions."

"Richland County hospitals must send to Columbus for the various blood "fractions" when they need them. This is all due to the fact that Richland County residents will not donate blood," Mrs. Weaver said.

State Acts to Convict Youth

CHICAGO —(AP)— The state moved swiftly Saturday to prosecute Robert Munday, 15, the head of the "Hangmen's Noose Club" for the killing of three and a half-year-old Tommy Laux.

State's Attorney John S. Boyle said he has a 35-page signed confession from Robert. He said he will ask the grand jury for a murder indictment.

Police in the stockyards district where the weird hanging death occurred seized the boy's pet kitten. Robert had accused little Tommy of throwing the tiger-striped kitten in a sewer.

Harvest Halted By Rain

Lightning Kills Man

Heavy rains late yesterday brought the mercury down in the Mansfield area, but halted harvesting operations as wheat and oats became too wet to "work."

The heat, killer of many Ohioans in the past two weeks, subsided yesterday but a Columus man, Harold Edinger, 38, was struck and killed by lightning in a 45 minute thunderstorm that lashed the city. Edinger was struck by a bolt as he entered his car parked near a street intersection.

Lightning also damaged the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Etzwiler, 309 Chester avenue, Mansfield, at 4:54 p. m. Crewmen from fire station one and two answered the call to put out the blaze which had started in the attic. Firemen said two large holes were cut in the roof by the bolt. Damage was confined to the roofing and attic.

HOLDS UP HARVEST

Lantz mills reported yesterday that the rain has held up the wheat harvest since Wednesday. Richland county farmers have brought in little grain since then, they said, and those that have sold their's have had it tested at 16½ to 17½ per cent moisture, too high to keep well. The small amount of harvesting done in the area has made it impossible to judge with accuracy what the yield per acre is going to be this year. Triple-A Chairman Guy L. Taylor has predicted a 1,102,020 yield in the county this year, but added that it was a rough estimate.

Yesterday's high temperature was recorded at 88 degrees at 12:30 p. m. by the Civil Aeronautics Administration at the Municipal airport.

There was .69 of an inch rainfall reported from midnight Friday to 8 p. m. last night.

104 Jailed In Strike

HONOLULU — (AP) — Police Saturday arrested 104 pickets who attempted to bar the way to unloading tinplate from a strike-bound freighter.

The main arrest was the first major brush in Hawaii's 70-day-old stevedore strike.

The clash was mild. One policeman reported he was cut on the finger by a Filipino stevedore who drew a knife, and another charged a picket threw dirt in his eyes.

All 104 were charged under a law, passed only this year by the territorial legislature, with attempting to stop persons engaged in lawful work from entering a public or private place.

The arrests occurred when 30 men hired by the U. S. marshall arrived in trucks to unload tinplate from the Hawaiian Citizen under a federal court order. The pickets three deep, blocked the trucks' way to the pier until 10 policemen intervened.

The American Can company, which obtained the court order to free the 2,600 tons of tinplate aboard the ship, reported it was 56,000,000 cans behind on deliveries to pineapple packers. Success of the operation may lead to similar efforts to unload a total of 16,000 tons of tinplate from five other ships idle in port.

Child Eats As Firemen Slave Away

SYRACUSE, N. Y. —(AP)— A 17-month-old boy ate jello and pretzels for more than an hour Saturday while firemen struggled to free his leg from a water standpipe.

Firemen said the boy, Sam Vanneman jr., of Washington, D. C., stepped into the uncovered standpipe, between the curb and street, while playing. His leg sank in to his hip.

Efforts of Mrs. Vanneman to free the boy by pouring oil and lard into the pipe failed. While firemen dug to free him, Sam's mother fed him pretzels, spooned out jello and gave him drinks of water.

Firemen finally cut through the pipe below the trapped leg.

Indians In Second as A's Falter

Close Gap on Loop Leaders

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians backed into second place last night when their game with the St. Louis Browns was postponed because of rain.

The Tribe climbed over the Philadelphia Athletics because the A's bowed to the Boston Red Sox in a day game. Cleveland now holds a two percentage point lead over the slumping Athletics.

Because the pace-setting New York Yankees also lost, the Tribe moved to within six games of the American league lead. The closest the Tribe has been to the Yanks since mid-May is five and a half games.

In order to complete the scheduled three-game series and to bring the first half of their season to a close, the Tribe will meet the Browns in a double-header today.

Bob Feller, who was slated to pitch last night, still is Manager Lou Boudreau's choice for the first game. Boudreau did not reveal who would work the second game, but three men: Steve Gromek, Frank Papish, and Mike Garcia, are well rested.

The Indians have polished off the Browns nine times in eleven encounters this season, but seldom have the Browns been soft touches.

Scores of the last four Tribe victories over the Browns were 3-1, 4-3, 4-3, and 6-5. Interspersed among those Tribe wins was a 4-2 win for the Brownies.

Clanks Along At 57 MPH, No Tailwind

CLEVELAND— (AP) —Clanking along in his 1924 Model T Ford, Carl Lipinski, 58, was surprised to see a policeman pull up.

"I clocked you at 57 miles an hour," said Patrolman Charles Vrana.

Lipinski insisted the old buggy wouldn't do better than 20 with a tailwind. As cops will, Vrana won the argument.

The Ford, described as a confusion of loose nuts, bolts twisted wires and rusted metal, was imprisoned at the police pound as an "unsafe vehicle."

Lipinski is due in court Friday for driving an unsafe car.

2 Others Hurt In Mishaps

Truck Goes Out of Control

Guido V. Dandera, 35, Newark, was killed instantly late yesterday when he leaped from his gas truck as it went out of control a mile southeast of Ashland on U. S. Route 42.

Two other persons, both of Washington, D. C. were injured yesterday when the car in which they were riding skidded on the wet pavement and crashed into a tree off U. S. Route 30, five miles east of here.

Dandera was driving a tractor pulling a semi-trailer and a four wheel trailer. The four wheeler turned over and hit him as he leaped, the state highway patrol reports.

SKIDS OFF ROAD

The tractor and semi skidded off the left side of the road into a field. Dandera died of a fractured skull, a fractured hip, numerous lacerations and a crushed chest. He was going toward Ashland when the accident occured.

The truck was owned by the E. J. Egner and Son company, Galion. The driver's body was taken to the Egan funeral home in Newark.

Victims in the other crash where Ellis F. Tydings, 78, reported in "fair condition" from a fractured left leg, and Mrs. Harry Bushman, 34, who suffered a fractured spine, but is reported in "good condition" by hospital authorities.

The driver of the car, Harry Bushman, 53, did not require hospital treatment.

Witnesses said Bushman's car was traveling west when it skidded on the wet pavement, cut across the highway and struck the tree about 30 feet off the road. The car was badly damaged.

Telephones in the area were out of order and a passing motorist drove several miles toward Mansfield to call an ambulance to take the injured to the hospital.

Seek Trade With Reds

LONDON—(AP)—Britain hopes to do about $1,000,000,000 worth of business with Soviet Russia and three other communist nations in the next year in her effort to get out of the hole economically.

Officials in Britain's treasury and board of trade agreed Saturday the current dollar crisis gives new significance to trade pact talks now going on with Russia, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The $1,000,000,000 would be about six per cent of Britain's total world trade. Last year her imports and exports totaled $15,651,466,000, of which $6,333,314,816 were imports.

The question of why Britain is in trouble financially engaged U. S. Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and British Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Staffard Cripps in futeher talks yesterday.

They held a morning session, lunched together, and then returned to the conference table. Snyder is understood to have asked a few questions at the first meeting Friday and then sat back for Cripps' explanations. A British treasury spokesman said possible remedies were up for consideration.

Family Near Ontario Gets Countrywide Attention

Sisters Win Musical Acclaim

By BILL HERRING
News-Journal State Editor

ONTARIO — Countywide acclaim is being given the nearby Gilliom sisters for their musical ability Mr. and Mrs Elmer Gilliom, of Mansfield R D 6, have six daughters and one son Three of the girls have been playing musically as a trio, or as band members since May, 1946 A fourth sister will join them this month

The trio is composed of Margaret, 24, who plays the accordion; Betty, 22, who plays the Spanish guitar, and Mary, 20, who plays the electric Hawaiian guitar, Dorothy, 14, accordionist, intends joining her sisters this summer.

Frances, 18 twirls the baton in specialty numbers played by her sisters Helen 16, is the only Gilliom girl who doesn't play a musical instrument while their brother, John, 12, hopes to play the trumpet with his sisters

GILLIOM SISTER TRIO—These Gilliom sisters, daughters of Mr and Mrs Elmer Gilliom of Mansfield R D 6, near Ontario, have won acclaim for their musical ability Standing is Margaret, 24, while seated are Betty, 22, at left, and Mary, 20

"You cannot sing and play at the same time and do justice to either part" Margaret said in explaining the Gilliams lack a vocalist in their family group "We're strictly instrumentalists when playing before the public"

All their instruments are electrified The resulting volume makes it difficult to practice at home but despite this, the girls practice at least two hours weekly.

Music takes work—lots of practice" Betty added "It's a funny thing for once you play moderately you strive to attain greater perfection We girls have found it best to concentrate on one instrument"

★ ★ ★

The Gilliom sister trio has made at least 40 public appearances and plays for concerts, clubs granges, churches and family gatherings They own their own sound system, music stands and check on their musical progress with a recording unit at two month intervals

The Gilliom girls occasionally play as members of Smart's Accordion Band in Mansfield and credit Smart with starting their musical careers. Margaret had taken piano lessons but switched to the accordion when a friend sold her instrument at an enticing figure. Smart got Margaret interested in instructions and she in turn induced her sisters to receive instruction.

Their first public appearance was in May, 1946 at the Druggist Mutual Insurance company's party that marked a birthday anniversary for Betty, an employe Mary had graduated from Springfield Township high school in Ontario so it was primarily an all-Gilliom affair

Margaret is employed at the Burrough's Radio company with Mary at home All are Springfield Township high school graduates

"Playing in front of people enables one to get over nervousness," Margaret explained "This is professional training—though our appearances are non professional."

Mary is the most avid Smart supporter in the family for he taught her to play a few dances shortly after starting instructions She couldn't read a note of music beforehand she said Mary says the guitars furnish the rhythm with an accordion band such as the Smart congregation is Musical talent has a pleasant sound but you have to work for it," the Gilliom girls chorused.

Sale of Historic Academy At Hayesville Being Sought

ASHLAND — One of Ashland county's most historic institutions, the old Vermillion Institute at Hayesville may be sold at auction in the near future if present legal steps are completed

Court action has been filed by A. E Diefendorf, Howard Grabill and John Risser against the unknown heirs and descendants of the 119 persons holding 186 shares in the Vermillion Joint Stock company, organized March 23, 1873 The company at that time purchased the institute land and opened an academy there

Plaintiffs state a search for the stockholders has been made and that apparently all are dead The three claim to be heirs at-law of some of the original stockholders and thus entitled to their interests in the property

Defendants claim the grounds and building have been vacant for more than 30 years real estate taxes have become delinquent and the building is in a state of complete disrepair.

The list of the original stockholders reads like a history of Ashland county's pioneer days.

The old academy building on one of Hayesville's principal streets, stands in a picturesque setting of tall trees It was one time a mecca for those desiring the kind of higher education available at that time and many of Ashland county's oldest citizens were educated there Since being closed as a school the building has been used for community gatherings but of late its state of disrepair has been such that it stands alone as little more than a memory of the past

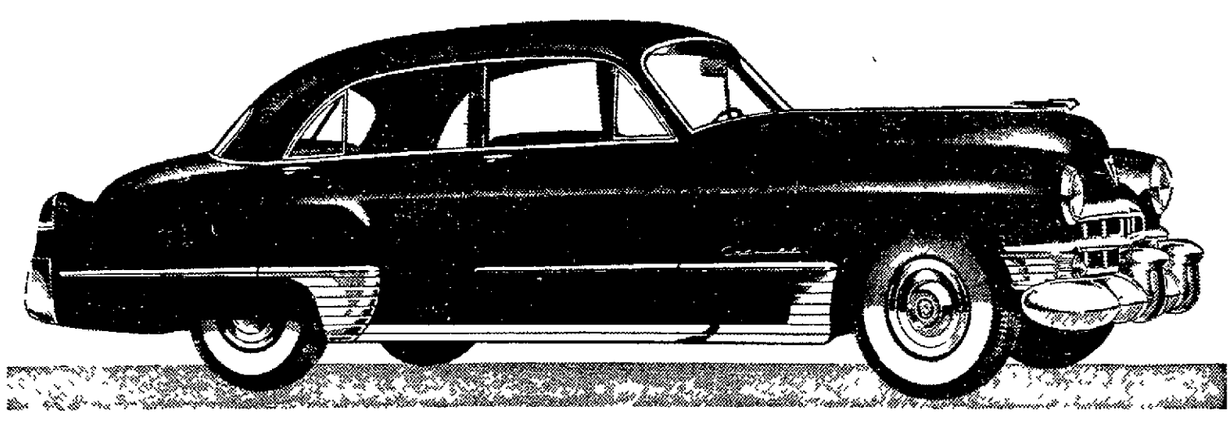
Why a Man Buys a Cadillac



If you were to ask the owner of a 1949 Cadillac why he bought his car, he would doubtless find it difficult to put into words the way he feels about "the Standard of the World".

He would probably tell you that he bought his car because it's a Cadillac

Of course if you wanted to ask him specific questions, he could give you a great deal of specific information

Did he buy his car for performance?

Why, surely he bought it for performance—for the 1949 Cadillac is powered by a great new V-8 engine, so smooth and effortless that only a demonstration can tell the whole story of its superiority

Did he buy it for comfort?

Yes—for a ride so quiet and restful and easy that every mile is a joy and a relaxation.

Did he buy it for safety?

He certainly did! He has such confidence in the steady steering, the quick acceleration and the powerful hydraulic brakes that his peace of mind is worth the purchase price!

Did he buy it for long life and durability?

There can be no doubt of it. For he knows that many Cadillacs have rolled down the highways for more than half a million miles and are still in active service!

Did he buy it for ?

Why, of course he did! And he bought it for a lot of other reasons for beauty, for distinction, for quality, for background, for character, for craftsmanship, for engineering

He bought it, you see, because it's a . . . Cadillac

And that is the reason why you should buy one—for Cadillac's superiority lies not in any one thing but in the whole of its substance Why not come in for a ride that's a revelation?

American League Favored In All-Star Game

182 Golfers to Try for Ohio 'Am' Title

Nationals Beaten 3 Straight

BROOKLYN—(AP)—Drag out the standing head—"American League Favored In All-Star Game."

Once again the Americans will be the popular choice over the pick of the National league in the 16th annual "classic" to be played Tuesday afternoon at Ebbets Field. An 11-4 victory edge for the American is the reason.

New names, new faces, but the same old story. That has been the all-star history in recent years with the American working on a three-game win streak. Not since 1944, when Billy Southworth managed a 7-1 victory at Pittsburgh, has the National won. Before that it was 1940, with three American triumphs in between.

Southworth is back again as skipper of the 1948 pennant-winning Boston Braves. He has the advantage of playing in a National league park where their four victories have been scored. A crowd of about 34,000 is expected. The game will be broadcast and televised.

For a change, it seems that most of the all-stars, whether picked by the vote of 4,637,743 fans of the respective managers, will show up in playing condition.

HENRICH DOUBTFUL

Of the starting lineups, as picked by the fans, only Right Fielder Tommy Henrich of the New York Yankees is on the doubtful list. Henrich has missed about a week because of a painful knee injury.

George Kell of Detroit, the Americans' third baseman, returned to the lineup after being sidelined by a foot injury and Andy Seminick of the Phils, the National league starting catcher, is just getting back to work after a layoff. All starters, except the pitchers, must play three innings. No pitcher can go more than three except in an extra inning game.

The National has 26 players because Eddie Waitkus, the Phils' first baseman who was shot in his Chicago hotel room, was named to an honorary berth.

Around the infield the American will field first baseman Eddie Robinson of Washington, who was traded by Cleveland last winter, second baseman Cass Michaels of Chicago, shortstop Eddie Joost of Philadelphia and Kell. The starting outfield will be Ted Williams and Dom DiMaggio of Boston and Henrich, if available. Birdie Tebbetts of Boston will be the catcher with Boudreau due to name his pitching starter Monday morning.

Johnny Mize of New York will be at first for the National, Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn at second, Pee Wee Reese of Brooklyn at short and Eddie Kazak, the St. Louis rookie, at third. Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh's home

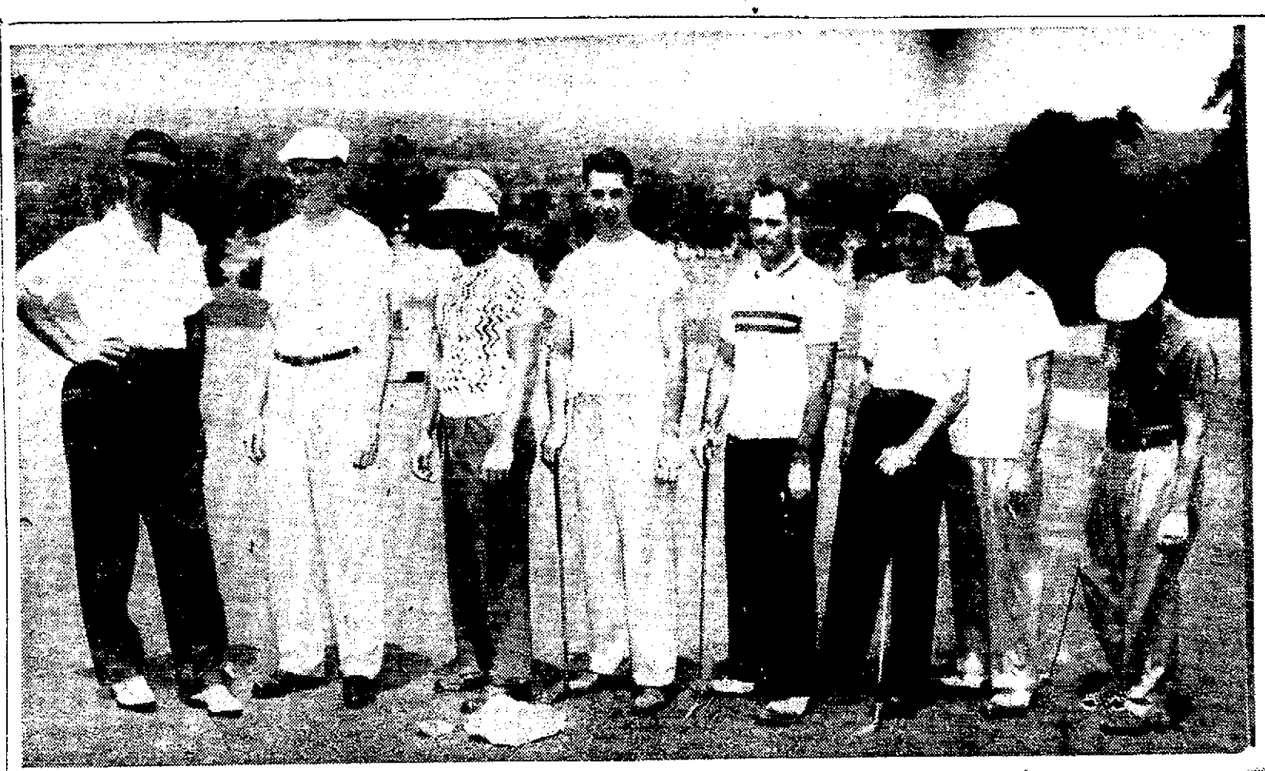
Lou Gregorio Pitches Today For Penn Auto

Little Lou Gregorio, the former Senior high school flash, was expected to get Manager Lefty Deeds' mound call for the Penn Auto-Sporting Goods team today.

The Autos are to face the Creston Pirates at 2:30 p. m. at Blue Goose diamond as they go after their eighth victory against six defeats.

Deeds failed to name his complete lineup but indicated that Dick Ernsberger would be given another trial at the third base spot. That means that Ernsberger will play a double-header as he is also a member of the Madison team of the Central Ohio junior league.

Madison is to meet Perrysville immediately following the Auto's game. Ray "Dutch" Bader, one of the top Penn Auto pitchers, also plays with the Madison nine.



Just Some Stuff Culled From Cuff Of Rotund Gent

Sports Editor:

To settle an argument can you give me this information? Why do they put ball players in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown? Do they have to do anything unusual?

What kind of a ball player was Jack Taylor who used to play with Chicago? Did he do any outstanding thing? He is in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, and can you tell me what for?

RUTH MOFFATT,

A lot of questions but the answers come fairly easily. Here they are.

1. I'll try to settle the argument.

2. The Hall of Fame is baseball's national shrine. In the building at Cooperstown is a distinguished collection of baseball souvenirs and a complete baseball library. Bronze plaques commemorate the immortals of baseball, men who by their deeds on and off the playing field have made Abner Doubleday's creation our national pastime.

3. To get in the Hall of Fame ball players have to be the best at something. The role includes such legendary figures as Walter Johnson, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Lou Gehrig, Mickey Cochrane, Rogers Hornsby, Ban Johnson, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Christy Mathewson, Connie Mack, Cy Young, Tris Speaker, Hugh Duffy, Nap Lajoie and on down the line for 60 names. It isn't easy to get into the "Hall." Players who have participated in the last 25 years can get in by ballots cast by the Baseball Writers' association. Only writers who have been active 10 years may vote and a player must get 75 per cent of the votes to make the grade. Only Charles Gehringer made it this year, while Herb Pennock and Pie Traynor made it in 1948.

4. We don't recall any Jack Taylor who played with Chicago. However, Zack Taylor, the St. Louis Browns manager, caught for the Chicago Cubs, Brooklyn Dodgers, New York Yankees and Boston Braves in the 20's and 30's. He's been in pro ball since 1915 as a player, coach or manager—25 of the years as a player. Only once did he hit over .300—.310 with the Dodgers in 1925—but he had a lifetime fielding average of .977.

5. He was just a good journeyman catcher (still talking about Zack.)

6. There is no person named Taylor on the Hall of Fame list. However, his picture may be among the souvenirs.

HARRY MEHOCK, the physical education chief of Mansfield public schools, reports that a total of 2,370 youngsters took part in the grade school sport and physical education program during the 1948-49 school year. . . . In addition, ten schools had relay teams in the Mansfield Relays. . . . Six of the 11 elementary schools had intra-mural programs with 1,000 "kids" participating. . . . Breakdown of the sport program follows: flag football, 300; basketball, 300; softball, 350; ice skate carnival, 200 and track meet, 220. . . . Varsity and reserve teams competed in each sport except track and ice skating. . . . All youngsters had physical examinations before playing and adults coached the teams in most instances.

HOWARD HERSHEY, former Senior High athletic star, will serve as a junior high sports coach in the Steubenville system beginning this year. . . . Howard will coach basketball and football and teach physical education. . . . He's serving as director of boy's activities this summer at Prospect park. . . . A star at halfback on the 1939 and 1940 Tyger teams, Howard won four football letters at Senior High. . . . He graduated this year from Miami university and served four years in the Army. . . . Howard played football at Miami until an injury put him on the sidelines.

THE BLIND GOLFERS playing in the "sightless" tourney at Norristown, Pa., have recorded some amazing feats. . . . Yesterday, Charlie Boswell, the former Alabama backfielder, whistled a drive 250 yards down the fairway and chipped onto the green. . . . He needed two putts to get his par four on the 290-yard hole. . . . He had a 52 today to run his total to 160 strokes for 27 holes. . . . Then Edward Gaylord amazed the spectators by holding out on a 60-yard chip shot . . . . Amazing for a bunch of fellows who know where the hole is only by the caddy's voice and rattling of the pin in the cup.

Three minor flights are scheduled for the women who fail to make the select 16.

Among the stars entered are: Mrs. Robert Palmer, Columbus district champion; Jean Hopkins, Cleveland; Betty Kerby, Akron Fairlawn Country club star; Claire Doran, Cleveland and Judy Baker, Lima.

Palestinian Puts Crimp In Winning Streak of Capot

NEW YORK—(AP)—Palestinian, a colt which could have been claimed for $7,500 last year, put a crimp in Capot's three-year-old championship ambitions yesterday by capturing the $56,100 Empire City handicap at Jamaica.

Capot, pride of the Greentree stable, wound up third, as George D. Widener's Reveille took second money in the field of seven sophomore stars. One Hitter, the other half of the Greentree entry, was fourth.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro brought Palestinian, owned by the Isadore Beiber-Hirsch Jacobs partnership, home by two and one-half lengths as they scooted the mile and three sixteenths in 1:57 1-5. Reveille, which has done little this year, was a length and a quarter to the good over Capot at the pay-off spot.

Two Richland County Tilts Slated Today

Except for two postponed games, the infant Richland County baseball league will complete its first half season with two games this afternoon.

Both are to be played on Mansfield diamonds. The Mansfield Hawks are to host the Shelby Merchants at Tillman park at 2:30 while T. and E. Tavern meets Lexington at Liberty park an hour earlier.

The Tavern - Lexington game will be played as part of a double-header with Greenwich to come here for the second game. Al Boyer is set to pitch the league game for T. and E. with Ernie Tinkey going in the nightcap.

NOVACIC LEADS

Left - fielder Jerry Novacic leads the Tavern batters with a .400 average. He is followed by Rich Snavely, .357; Joe Miller, .333; Jay Bardon, .325; Joe Atton, .324; Cliff Webb, .278; Tinkey, .250; Joe Siwek, .226; Mike Watchorn, .142; Dave Miller, .140; Trent Snavely, .135; Boyer, .130; and Ivan Witchey, .107. The pitching records show Boyer with three victories and one defeat, Boyer with 2-2 and Mike Watchorn with 2-3.

The Hawks can clinch a tie for the first half title by beating Shelby while a win for T. and E. will tie it for third.

Ontario, only team to have completed its schedule, will play a non-league game at Centerburg. Postponed games remaining in the first half are Butler at T and E. and the Hawks at Lexington.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Calumet Farm's Duchess Peg, two-year-old daughter of Whirlaway, won the $56,375 Arlington Lassie stakes at Arlington park yesterday. Baby Comet was second and Bed O' Roses was third.

21 Local Stars In Tourney

By CHARLEY STINE

Mansfield's biggest golfing event in history stood only one day away today as 161 links artists from all sections of the state began moving in for the Ohio Amateur championship.

Eighteen holes of medal play will start the six-day, 162-hole grind over Westbrook's proud old Country club course tomorrow. From there on it will be a survival of the fittest with 21 Mansfielders fighting for a share of the glory.

The large list of local entrants brings the field to an unusually high 182, 20 more than played last year when the tournament was held at Dayton's Miami Valley course.

Spectators are welcome at the tournament and no admission charge will be made. Ample provisions are to be made for parking.

Mansfield's large entry also makes it a favorite to grab the rotating trophy which goes to the club of the winner. Only two defending champions are in the field and the accent appears to be on youth all the way.

Here to defend his title will be Harold Paddock of Chagrin Falls, who defeated the veteran Maurice McCarthy in the finals last year. McCarthy, a four-time champion, will be among the absent, as will Frank Stranahan, who just finished the British Open.

WILL BE HERE

Ed Preisler of Shaker Heights, who won the title at Lima in 1946, will be the only other former champion here.

Other top-notchers set to play are Bob Myers of Granville and Allan Whaling of Cincinnati, last year's co-medalists; Tom Strange jr., of Cincinnati; 19-year-old Dow Finsterwald, of Athens; Steve Pipoly, of Youngstown; Bob Silers, of Cleveland, and Jack Fitzpatrick, of Akron.

Silers and Fitzpatrick both played practice rounds at Westbrook yesterday but failed to turn in scores.

An unexpected starter will be Creighton Miller, the former Notre Dame football great, who plays out of Cleveland. Miller is reportedly one of the longer drivers in the tournament.

The late entry of Marion Ward and Michael Orr yesterday brought Westbrook's entry list to 17. Others are Dale Rose, Carl Wiseman, Bill Black jr., Owen Hegarty, Jim Hegarty, Dick Koozer, Al Hager, Bill Mercer, Bob Carpenter, Bob Cruickshank, Dick Hosler, Vic Salter, Gene Zediker, Pete Linster and John Cook.

Rose got "hot" on a tuneup round yesterday. He was four under par after 12 holes but a heavy downpour of rain slowed him up. Rose ended the practice round with a 71, one under par.

Ed Blonston and Arnie Adams entered as non-resident members of Sandusky Country club while the two Mansfielders who really earned their way in are Pete Thoma and Ted Etzel. The pair had to qualify for the State Public Links tournament and then finish in the top 24 of that meet to win a berth.

Only ten Public Links golfers will play in addition to Etzel and Thoma.

TOP MANSFIELDERS

Thoma and Al Hager are expected to be Mansfield's toughest competitors although up to a dozen of the local men could make it into the match play brackets.

The field will be cut to the top 90 after tomorrow's 18 holes and another 18 Tuesday. Twenty-six names will be chopped off after that and 64 men go into match play Wednesday. One match will be played Wednesday, two Thursday and Friday, with the finalists going over the 36-hole route Saturday.

The tournament will continue from 8 a. m. till dusk tomorrow and a slight hold-up any place along the line will have the late-starters playing in darkness. Eight minutes are allowed between three-somes with the tee-offs to take an even eight hours.

District Softball Entries To Open

Entry list of the 1949 district softball tournament will open July 13 according to Commissioner Stan Kamen.

The '49 tournament is scheduled to open Aug. 1 and close Aug. 19 on the Gorman-Rupp diamond in Mansfield. A girls' tourney will open the long meet and will be followed by the men's competition. Deadline for entering both meets has been set as Jul. 27.

Entry blanks for the two meets will be available Wednesday at the Recreation department, 141½ West Fourth street. Managers can pick up the blanks at the "Rec" office or call 3391-1 and they will be mailed.

All proceeds of the two tourneys will go to the Mansfield chapter of the Hot Stove league, which is sponsoring the competition. The profits will be used for baseball equipment for the five - Mansfield junior baseball leagues.

Mansfield Gorman-Rupp is defending district champion. The Pumpers advanced to the finals of the state tournament in being eliminated.

Original plans had called for country meets to proceed the district affair this year. However, Kamen was unable to line-up county commissioners to handle the meets. The county plan will go into effect for the 1950 competition.

Counties which will participate in the Mansfield district joust are: Richland, Wyandot, Crawford, Ashland, Marion, Morrow and Knox.

N-J Net Meet Slated Aug. 13-21

The annual News-Journal city tennis tournament will be staged Aug. 13-21 on the new Woodland courts.

In announcing the date and site of the net meet, Director Watty Slabaugh said last night that all the matches in the 1949 tournament will be scheduled before hand and all will be played on the three Woodland courts.

Previously matches had been played on a half-dozen different types of courts in Mansfield. Entry list for the '49 competition will open on July 13 and close Aug. 10 at midnight. As usual there will be no entry fee for the tourney with the News-Journal furnishing trophies to the champions in all classes.

Contestants will be required, however, to furnish their own tennis balls and must wear tennis shoes on the clay courts at Woodland. Basketball type shoes and "sneakers" will not be permitted.

Last year, Lefty Bob Keefe won his second straight city crown, defeating former Ohio State netter Andy Zoll, 6-0, 6-2. Competing in her first tournament, Elinor Hattman copped the women's singles from Mary Ettinger, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1. Keefe teamed with Jo Ann Beelman to cop the mixed doubles.

Other champions were: men's doubles, Lowell Bourns and Sam Campbell; boy's singles, Jim Shelley and girl's singles, Carol Johns; Tom Bloor and Fred Tharp will serve with Slabaugh on the tournament committee.

Random Shots . . .

With

Don Miller

Any red faces on local fishermen this past week don't happen to be sunburn. It's merely an indication they were at the Casting Club competition Thursday night when a youngster posted the highest score of the year in the heavy wind!

Some of the better casters took off on the first round and turned in some creditable scores (the winner had 92) and then the youngsters took over.

Wham! Right off the bat one of the little rascals chalked up 86 points, better than most adults so far this year. I cruised over to take my shots along with some of the other tyros, managed to restrain myself from kicking the youngster in the water, then clipped out a not - so - neat 86, barely equalling the boy's score. I think I'll do my casting from a typewriter in the future!

★

Word comes along now that pickerel and white bass are tearing into practically everything near Gull reef and east of Pelee island, so looks as though some charter trips are in order.

I've been itching to get down to Pymatuning for some of those walleyes but can't find time to make the trip.

What those babies won't do to a minnow or spoon that's troiled deep over those weeds!

Being forced to limit myself to a one - day trip, present plans call for myself and Kenny Berry to tackle those muskies on Will's Creek. Ken has raised two of the 'tigers' in his last six trips but failed to bring home any meat. Now we'll show him how a 'type-writer expert' does the job. (What have I got to lose? He didn't bring any home either.)

The state legislature is still kicking the idea around of studying fishing in Sandusky bay, but not definite action has been taken to date. A bill authorizing the commission which is to make a two - year study is still pending in the Ohio Senate rules committee.

That Sandusky fight can go on for years (and probably will) before final action is taken.

A few fish and wildlife experts on a study group could find the facts on the bay in a little less than nothing flat, but still it's going to take legislators a solid two years to complete its study. The group intends to study three different points:

1- Commercial and sports fishing practises in the area.

2- Causes of discord between commercial fishermen and sportsmen.

3- Condition of water and marine life.

And it's going to take two years!

Brother, I'm no expert but think I can answer all three questions in 30 seconds.

Here goes:

1- Commercial fishermen take anything that's legal, some that isn't, and wreck spawning beds Sport fishermen aren't taking much of anything. It isn't there any more.

2- The causes of discord? Same as above and same as has been named in petitions to the state for several years now. Commercial fishing is bringing recreational fishing to a halt in the bay area.

3- Condition of the water? It stinks. Take it any way you want to, it stinks. As for marine life, that point will darned soon be covered with one word. carp. They are about the only fish to be found in ample supply where once pike, pickerel and other lake fish thrived.

Now you gentlemen provide your own answers from your own observations and see if we don't come somewhere close in the final analysis.

Harold Bracey and his brother-in-law, Jay Bowen of Canton, are off on a neat three - week trip. The boys are taking in the sights and thrills of Gaspe peninsula, Quebec, and plan on boating their share of fish.

Knowing Bracey as I do, I'll lay odds he comes back with some tall fish tales and not too many fish. Oh, he'll catch a few; even I do that on occasion, but I'm waiting for visible proof!

A post card from Catawba island was flipped on my desk Friday, just about disrupting my entire day. It seems that Vern Hoffman (that guy sure likes Lake Erie) and George Smith of the Mansfield Printing company, racked up 20 nice pickerel.

One of the pickerel was "the prize catch of 1949", according Vern. The scrapper was a nine - pound, 30 - inch catch which the Senior high basketball coach hopes to have mounted.

Plays Cowboy With 'Visitor'

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Andrew Vince looked up from his desk in a Buckeye section store this week and saw a doe standing in the doorway.

"I put my arm around her neck," he related. "I don't know why. Next thing I knew we both were flying about five feet through the air."

George Adamson, his partner in the Heights Floor Covering and Window Shade company heard the racket and came to his aid. After a pellmell chase around the shop, they managed to tie the animal up with a venetian blind cord.

In the meantime, a crowd of nearly 1,000 had collected outside to watch the proceedings

The Animal Protective League said that because of a broken leg, the doe would have to be killed.

Loudonville Plans New Street Lights

LOUDONVILLE — Council last week approved a plan for the installation of three street lights. Members agreed to add a few lights each year until all parts of the villages are lighted properly.

The new lights will be installed at the end of East Washington, at the south end of South Water and at the south end of Monroe street in the section known as "Happy Hollow".

The superintendent of the DeLucca Construction company of Akron, low bidders on the local water works improvement project, will arrive Monday. He will make preliminary arrangements for starting the project at his visit to the water works here.

'Bait War' Gets Rough

Crawfish-Catchers In Bloody Brawl

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — A long - standing bait "war" between three Columbus crawfish-catchers and a group of Springfield residents finally got violent this week.

Joseph B. Frieze, 32, and his brothers, Charles and Paul, are in the soft-craw catching business. The streams around Columbus were muddy, so they tried their luck in Buck Creek at the Springfield city limits.

About 15 Springfielders some bait - catchers, attacked them with stones and other missiles. That started a fight. Joe Frieze and William Taylor, 28, of Springfield were still at it when police arrived. They were arrested.

Police later found a bucket filled with stones, marbles and a slingshot.

Friday, in municiapl court, brother Joe paid a $15 fine and costs for fighting. Taylor forfeited a $25 bond by failing to appear.

Police said the "war" has been going on every summer for several years.

New Picnic Area Placed at Charles Mill

Recreational Project Underway

With the ground cleared and picnic tables erected at Charles Mill dam, the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district neared the end of a $20,000 recreational project at the dam this past week.

Workmen have been busy for several weeks, using heavy equipment to build a parking lot and to clear underbrush to provide outdoor facilities for the Mansfield area vacationers.

The new picnic site, to be opened in a short time, is located on a peninsula just beyond the Charles Mill boathouse and towards Mifflin.

A well will provide safe drinking water; outdoor ovens are scattered about the area; and restrooms have been built for picnickers.

Kenny Wassem, concessionaire at Charles Mill, reports he intends to place boats near at the new picnic grounds so pleasure-seekers and fishermen can run into Mud and Bell lakes without going clear around by the channel which separates these lakes from Mifflin lake proper.

If crowds warrant its use, there is a possibility that a soft drink stand may be situated there in the future.

An added feature of the new grounds will be a bathing beach which is to be constructed later.

The project was one of the two scheduled for this area, the other being a $250,000 recreational development program for Pleasant Hill.

Ohio Anglerette Nails Big Muskie

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., Canada — (AP) — A woman angler from Beach City, Ohio, hooked a 25-pound muskellunge at nearby Clear Lake Friday.

The fish, largest caught in the Kawartha lake area in three years, towed her boat about the lake for an hour.

Mrs. Elmer Zingery landed it with help from her husband and her 10-year-old son.

Willard Times Employs Bowling Green Grad

WILLARD — Jack DeForest, reporter, official photographer and assistant editor on the Willard Times for the past year has submitted his resignation and plans to return to Ohio university to continue his work toward a master of science degree.

His successor will be Harold Egg of Berkey, near Toledo who graduated in June from the department of journalism at Bowling Green State university. In World War II, he spent two years in the army and was a writer for the 771st tank battalion paper in Germany.

Heat Hits Fishermen

Fishing was spotty in the Muskingum lakes this past week due to the heat, Conservancy district officials reported.

The fish are sticking to deeper water and about the only bright spot in the overall picture is that catfish are beginning to become more active.

Crappies were hitting at Charles Mill, Kenn Wassem reported. John Eisaman and Curt Van Tilburg, Mansfield, landed 74 in two days up to 15½ inches long and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reider, Mansfield, had 14 gills, some over 10½ inches long.

Bart DeCoster, West Salem, landed two bass 14 and 16 inches long and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dormaier, Mansfield, landed a six pound silver cat and 60 crappies last Sunday in a few hours.

The Piedmont catch of the week was by Rube Stratton, Piney Fork, who pulled in a fish net which contained an unopened can of beer, cooled to just the right temperature.

Catfish were hitting at the lake with Verle Clay, Emerson Showalter and Dalton Hines, all of Sewellsville taking out 77 pounds of fish. The largest was a 33 inch 16½ pounder.

Few catches were reported at Pleasant Hill.

Hamster Proves To Be Clean, Prolific and An Ideal Pet

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — A new gulf coast industry is being built around a tiny four - handed furry animal with a big name.

The weak - eyed little fellow commonly is known as the hamster, but to the scientific-minded the proper name is mesocrites aratus.

It looks like a cross between a field mouse, a guinea pig and a monkey but in powers of procreation outdoes the rabbit.

With two pair a breeder with- a year may raise 100,000 and with the animals selling at $9 to $15 a dozen it can be a lucrative business.

The sloe - eyed light golden brown rodent's four feet look like miniature human hands. On them he can scoot backward almost as fast as forward as he darts around his little cage.

The hamster was first found in the early 1930's by an explorer excavating near Aleppo, Syria. He shipped a mother and eight baby hamsters to London where scientists immediately became interested

Because the warm blooded animal reacts to serums in 10 to 14 days — a much shorter period than necessary for rats and guinea pigs — laboratory work can be speeded.

They make captivating pets. With their beady black eyes, their soft fur and their baby - like hands they seem to appreciate affection and become quite tame when handled. They are free of odor, have neither lice nor fleas and are subject to no ills of their own.

The hamster stands about five inches high on his hind hands and likes to stand and brush at his nose with both front hands prior to eating.

They are fond of hiding and usually build a small den of straw or hay in a corner of a cage. There they store part of their food and hide their young at the approach of danger.

They eat sparingly of dog food, poultry pellets, and green vegetables and frequently store little bits of food in the pouch located beneath each rat - like ear. On occasion when moving her young, a mother hamster will store one of her inch - long babies in the pouch.

There is little work in raising the animals and many breeders in this area do it as a hobby. Little room is required as the average cage is but 12x18x8 inches and can house a mother and her litter.

The hamster is very prolific. Breeding begins when the female is eight weeks old and a litter of anywhere from six to 12 is born 16 days later.

Knowing Headache Cause Speeds Cure

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK — (AP) — Swearing off coffee gives some people a headache.

One man, drinking six cups a day, gave it up because of a church precept. He began having throbbing headaches that lasted for six hours each time.

His doctor traced the trouble to giving up caffeine. Caffeine pills helped the man. Drinking four bottles of a cola drink each day brought him complete relief. Gradually he cut down on the cola until he no longer missed having caffeine daily.

The story is told by Dr. Noah D. Fabricant in a new book, "Headaches, What Causes them, How to Get Relief." (Farrar, Straus Co). Giving up caffeine is one of the unusual causes sometimes of man's most common complaint, he says.

"It's been estimated that half of all patients who seek medical advice or attention have headache as one of their complaints," he writes.

"But most headaches can be relieved, and when understood, cured."

Headache isn't a disease of itself, but a sign of disease or emotional trouble, he explains. There are a host of causes, and some headaches "can be as time and calendar conscious as insurance - policy premiums and tax bills."

"Headaches associated with high blood pressure and migraine commonly awaken people at the break of day. Migraine headaches characteristically diminish in intensity 'when the evening sun goes down.' Sinus headaches often begin in the morning but improve as the day wears on. On the other hand, headaches associated with eye disease usually begin late in the day or during the evening.

As for the main causes of headaches:

Many are associated with eyestrain, and can be corrected easily by the proper eyeglasses.

Neuralgias, or pains along the crainial or spinal nerves, can cause severe and sharp headaches. Sometimes pain - relieving drugs help. Or the nerve may be treated with alcohol, or else be severed.

The common cold often brings headaches along with other discomforts. Rest is the best treatment for a cold, Dr. Fabricant says.

Sins disease is not as common a cause of headache as many people believe, he adds. Rest, use of heat, nose medicines, and pain-relievers like aspirin often help. Surgery may be needed in bad cases.

Migraine ranks high among headaches that cause the most misery. More women have it than men. Attacks may last from a few hours to several days. People who suffer from migraine are likely to be perfectionists, highly emotional, tense, and over-conscientious. There doesn't seem to be any single cause of migraine, he says. Often one reason for the pain is a widening of important arteries in the neck, and there are drugs which will contract the arteries.

"Headache of emotional origin is probably more common than most of us realize," he continues. "The emotional, restless, fidgety individual besieged by worry, anxieties, overwork and too little sleep is an obvious cause - and - effect victim. In many circumstances, the emotional difficulty is unknown."

The doctor must try to help the person find the reason for his emotional stress.

High blood pressure may bring on headaches. The treatment is to try the things that reduce blood pressure.

Constipation is rarely a cause of headache, he adds, and Americans attach too much importance to this trouble.

Headaches due to brain tumors or abscesses are relatively rare, but "no chronic headache should be dismissed without investigating the possibility of brain tumor."

Dr. Fabricant warns against prolonged use of headache powders or pills, without medical advice.

"A number of headache nostrums are habit forming," he says, "and their use in quantities exceeding the recommended dose has contributed greatly to mental and physical disorders in an increasing number of Americans.

"The person who claims that he cannot begin a day's work without taking a headache powder or pill or glass of fizzing water is on the road to becoming a drug addict. Indeed, drug habituation can become as firmly established in some persons as the liquor habit is in others. Many headache nostrums are dangerous precisely because they may lead to drug addiction.

ELSEWHERE IN SCIENCE:

NEW MILFORD, Conn — (AP) — This town is getting a street lighting system in which the lights turn themselves on and off through photoelectric eyes that "see" changes in dusk, dawn, or daylight conditions. When natural light falls below or rises above one footcandle of illumination, the eyes detect the change and switch the lights on or off individually and automatically.

Darkness from a daytime thunderstorm might cause them to come on. The system was developed and designed by engineers of the General Electric company in collaboration with engineers of the Connecticut Light and Power company.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The glare of oncoming automobile headlights at night is more dangerous for drivers over 30 than for younger drivers.

Glare - resistance is best from the age of 20 to 29, says the Better Vision institute. Even then, one person in seven is below average. From 30 to 39 years, one person in three is below average. After 50, only one person in 10 has normal glare - resistance or better. In a state like California, this means more than 1,000,000 drivers with substandard glare - resistance.

Mt. Lassen in California is the only active volcano in the United States.

Brannan Faced With Fixing Quotas On 1950's Wheat Crop

Wheat Price Depends On Decision

Stand Seen Big Campaign Issue

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Brannan soon must make a decision on future wheat production that could have far - reaching economic and political effects for the nation as well as farmers.

The decision involves this question: "Should the government invoke rigid marketing quotas on the 1950 wheat crop?"

Brannan may give his answer next Tuesday or Wednesday The time is short because farmers in the southwest will start planting wheat for 1950 harvest late in August.

Two years ago this country was cutting down on its own use of wheat to keep down starvation abroad. This war - born shortage has been replaced by a postwar surplus.

The decision Brannan must make is whether the surplus is large enough to warrant use of government measures to cut next year's production 20 to 25 per cent.

His answer will have great influence over next year's wheat prices, and hence influence over income of wheat farmers and those in business who depend upon them.

Furthermore, his decision could become a big issue in next year's congressional elections — elections which already promise a bitter battle for control of the next Congress.

Under farm laws the secretary is directed to proclaim a national marketing quota for wheat when estimated supplies exceed domestic consumption plus exports plus a reasonable reserve. The last official estimate on this year's crop indicated supplies for the marketing year ahead exceed such a level.

A new official estimate will be issued Monday. Unless it shows a sharp drop from the previous forecast, a decision for quotas would appear likely.

But quotas — devices used to curtail production — would have to be approved by at least two thirds of the farmers voting in a referendum. If Brannan decides for quotas, the matter probably would be submitted to a nationwide grower referendum Aug. 13.

Hundreds of millions of dollars in wheat income would hinge on the outcome of such a vote.

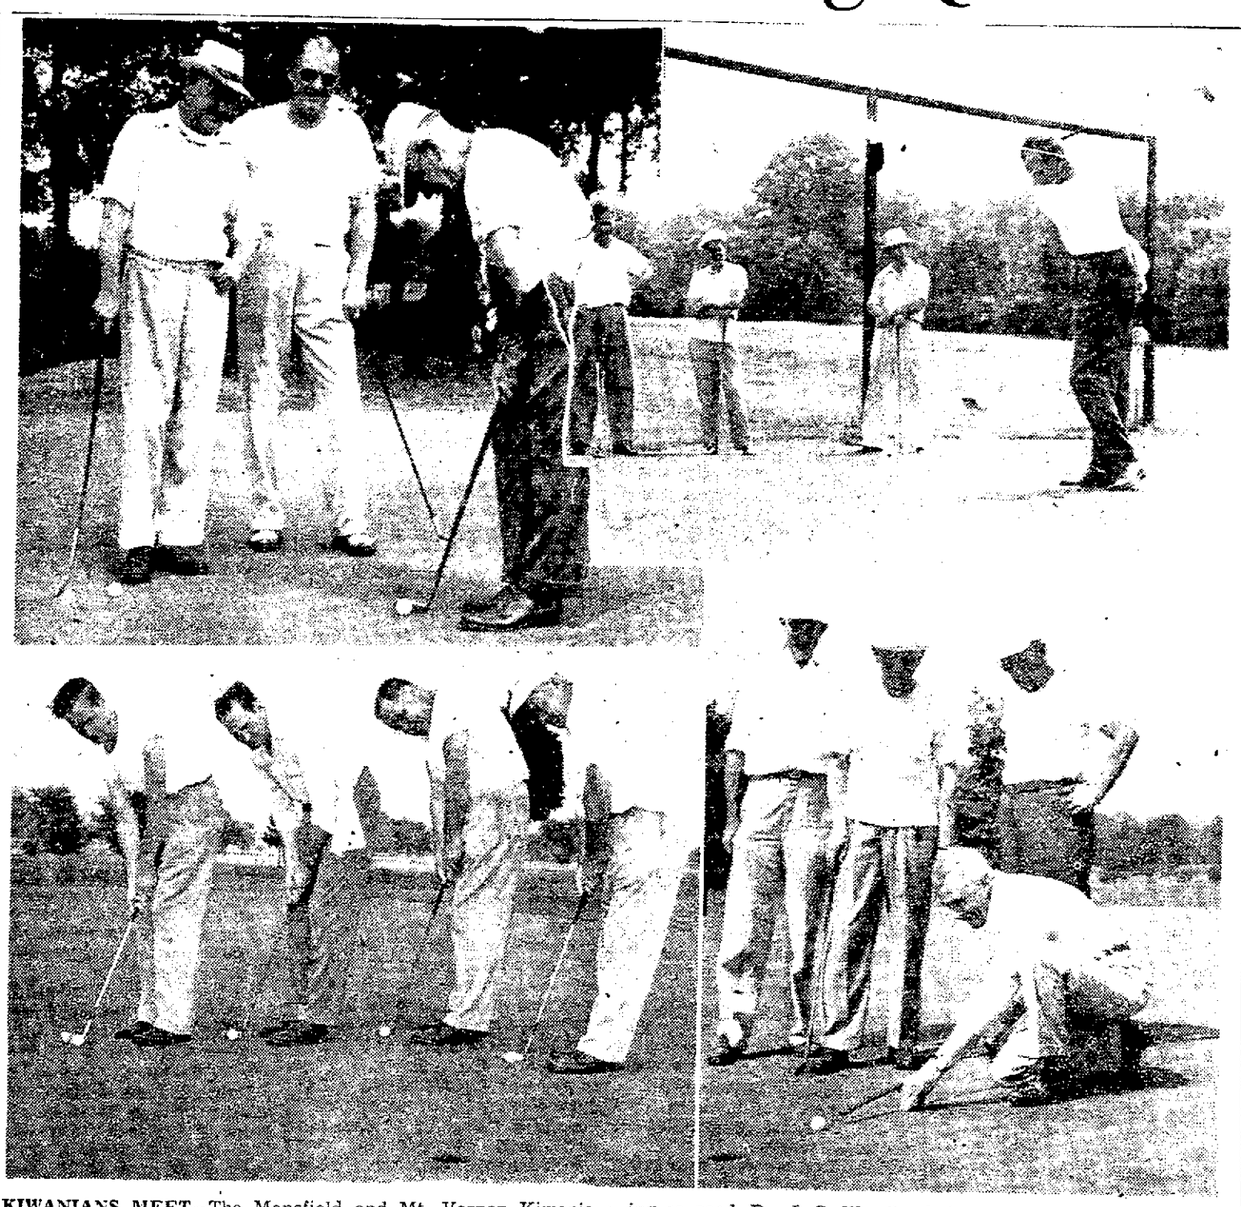
That's because the government's program for supporting farm prices is tied to controls. Under the law, if growers reject quotas, the level at which the government would support wheat prices would be reduced sharply. Dollar wheat instead of the present farm average of about $1.90 a bushel could easily result.

On the basis of a billion-bushel crop, that would mean a difference of around $900,000,000 to growers.

The price support level would be at least 90 per cent of parity if farmers approved quotas. But it would be 50 per cent of parity if they disapproved. (Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, designed to be equally fair to farmers and consumers.)

Without the support program wheat prices would be very much lower than they are right now. The same is likely to be the case next year.

Faced as it is with rumblings of economic difficulties ahead, the Truman administration is about as anxious as farmers are to see farm prices maintained.



KIWANIANS MEET—The Mansfield and Mt. Vernon Kiwanis clubs got together for a friendly game of golf and a joint meeting last Thursday at the Westbrook Country Club. The golf started at 1:30 p. m. Henry Talmadge, upper left, tries to sink a putt as Joy Herbert and guest, Dr. G. B. Robinson of Mt. Gilead, look on. Ted Culler, upper right, tees off while Ben Durgush of Mt. Vernon, B. Ross and T. Since those four weren't doing so good, Dr. J. C. Woodland thought that he knew a better way to putt, and proved it by using pool table technique. In the picture are, left to right, M. W. Hieber, Bert Earnshaw, and guest E. R. Mason of Kokomo, Indiana. The regular Kiwanis meeting started at 7:30 and was presided over by Willis Carto. Carto turned the meeting over to the Mt. Vernon Kiwanians for the entertainment. A double quartet was furnishd, and John Grabler led group singing with his accordion. Two new Mt. Vernon members were inducted by Rev. Matthew Madden. The meeting was followed by a buffet dinner at 10 p. m.

Hollywood Assistant Directors Get Bully Label

Nuisances Plague Film Locations

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — The assistant director of a Hollywood opus has a fairly thankless job. He's the scapegoat, a glorified whipping boy. He seldom does any real directing. Underlings often consider him a bully, because he's a straw-boss.

He rides herd on extras, tries to maintain some semblance of silence (usually making more noise shouting "Quiet!" than the offenders do), and does the worrying for the director, who earns much more money.

On location the assistant director has double trouble. He handles all manner of detail, even meal hours and housing. But his chief headache away from the studio is the professional kabitzer.

Assistant Director Paul Donnelly, who wears a perpetually harassed look, has developed a fine hateful respect for these obstructionists.

"Almost everyone living within 50 miles of Hollywood is movie - wise," he declared. "Many a farmer knows that if he starts chopping down a tree within a few hundred feet of a working movie company he'll snafu the sound system. Consequently, almost before you can set up the camera in some nice lonely spot, the farmers are grabbing their axes.

They've learned that, as soon as they've ruined a couple of scenes, the assistant director will offer them a fin to spare that tree."

Donnelly says he's silenced so many woodchoppers that he feels like a paymaster in a logging camp. In the same category are whistlers, highway horn-honkers and bell ringers. The dinner bell is always ringing in the country, if a movie crew is around.

Another variant of he racket popped up when "the good humor man" company went on location in a rural area near here.

"We found an old gent chasing butterflies in the field we were using," Donnelly related. "He was constantly in line with the camera, although we couldn't see any butterflies. After a while, of course, I gave him a five-spot to go chase himself somewhere else.

"The next day I learned all about this foxy grandpa. He's been chasing insects all over the county for four years—but only on the days when movie companies happen to be shooting."

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— The wonders of modern invention still are amazing Producer Armand Deutsch, who told this story upon returning from a location trip to Gallup, N. M., with the "Ambush" company:

Deutsch had just settled himself in his Gallup hotel room when the phone rang. The caller was Robert Taylor, star of the picture.

"I'll be down to see you in about 10 minutes," Taylor told Deutsch.

"You mean you'll be up to see me," Deutsch corrected him. "My room is on the top floor."

"I'll be down," repeated Taylor. "I'm talking to you from my plane, and right now I'm about 6,000 feet above you."

Kilbride-Main Team Following Tradition

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— Percy Kilbride laughs when he hears somebody say that he and Marjorie Main, as Ma and Pa Kettle on the screen, are following the Wallace Beery-Marie Dressler tradition.

"Marj and I are earthy when we get together in a picture, but I don't see any resemblance between the types of roles we play and those played by Wallace and Marie," he said on the set of "Free For All."

"However, if we can reach half their popularity I'll be satisfied."

Film Portrayal Gets Unwanted Audience

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— "Acting? You can have it!" says Jose Torvay, veteran of many Mexican movies. "If I could get another steady job I'd quit."

He doesn't dare, he added, because he has 11 adopted children.

Torvay is playing three different roles in his second Hollywood film, "Borderline." In his first, "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," he stole Humphrey Bogart's boots. Among the reasons he doesn't like acting:

"Once, in Mexico, I played a really mean villain who beat up a young girl. You know, after the premiere of that movie a gang was ready to shoot me."

Not many people seem to know that the younger Hays gave up a career in his father's prosperous law firm to try his hand at writing.

SPLASH—A sudden heavy rainstorm in Mansfield Saturday afternoon had storm sewers overflowing within a few minutes. This picture, taken on Walnut street, north of the intersection at West Fourth street, shows an automobile splashing through several inches of water. Many other streets were flooded in the same manner. Inadequate storm sewers contribute to the flash floods in the city.

Children Compete for Prize In Summer Reading Program

Although registrations in the summer reading club program of the Mansfield Public library will be received until next Saturday the program already is in full swing, according to Miss Eva Leonard, children's librarian

Miss Leonard said approximately 250 children in the younger reading club at the library already have read at least one book. Another 25 youngsters are enrolled in the younger club at Bowman school, where the Bookmobile makes a stop once a week. The younger club includes readers in the first through the fourth grades.

The children in the younger club receive a cloth bag when they register and one "gold nugget" is put in their bag for each book they read. If they have read 10 books by the end of the summer they get to keep the bags and nuggets

Tommy Hitchcock, 117 South Adams street, who was in the third grade at Hedges school last year, is leading the younger group with a total of 57 books read so far. Becky Spayde, 567 Yale drive, a third grader at Woodland school last year, is second with 54 books read to date.

More than 200 children are enrolled in the older reading club for youngsters in the fourth grade and up. Of this number nearly 150 have their covered wagons for having turned in at least one book report. Some already have completed the 10 books required to receive a certificate.

Fourteen children in the older club at the library and two at Bowman school will be eligible to receive books if they read the required 10 books by the end of the summer. Books are awarded to children who read the required number of books for three consecutive years.

Miss Leonard also reported the summer story hours have been drawing large numbers of children this year. Approximately 40 children attend each of two story hours every week, one at the library and one at Bowman school.

CIO Claims Victory In 'Speed-Up'

Hails Results Of Mediation

DETROIT — (AP) — CIO United Auto Workers head Walter P. Reuther Saturday claimed "complete victory" in the recent Ford "speed-up" strike.

There's no question we won it," he said, referring to a 2-1 decision on the speed-up question handed down late Friday by a three-man arbitration board.

Ford officials, however, still are "not sure" of the meaning of the 21-page ruling. They are deferring further comment until the minority report is received.

The arbitration board was selected under an agreement ending the 25-day strike in May. It had the task of deciding whether Ford had the contractural right to work men temporarily in excess of established work standards.

Reuther, in Milwaukee for the UAW convention, said the ruling denies Ford that right. "The decision will prevent the company from stepping up production even for brief periods," he declared.

Dr. Harry Shulman, contract umpire and one of the two majority arbitrators, said however: "It's a long decision on a technical matter, and I hope it's a solution of the problem independent of whether it's a victory or defeat for either side."

The report itself declared that "an absolute answer is not possible." It recommended that "appropriate solutions" be worked out for "particular jobs."

Dr. Shulman and Harry Gomberg, the latter the union's nominee to the panel, pointed out:

"We are required to determine the company's right under the contract. An absolute answer is impossible. The contract does not in terms address itself to the problem before us."

They indicated instead, that the matter was one for an umpire. Ford officials said they had asked this repeatedly during the strike.

Fire In Barn Kills Horses

A barn, six horses and several pieces of farm machinery were destroyed by fire yesterday on a farm three miles north of Mt. Hope on State Route 241 when lightning struck the barn.

Firemen from Millersburg, Mt. Eaton, and Fredericksburg answered the call but the fire was too far along by the time they arrived.

The blaze was on the farm of Benjamin J. Weaver whose home and several other nearby buildings were spared by the flames.

Millersburg Fire Chief Gordon Barton estimated the loss at $15,000.

J. J. CLARK, M. D.

TEMPORARILY FREE—Alger Hiss and his wife, Priscilla, are shown above leaving Federal court in New York City after the former State department aide heard Judge Samuel H. Kaufman dismiss a 'hung' jury in his perjury trial. Attorney-General Tom Clark insisted he would again try the case as soon as the court docket permits.

Missionary-Author Follows 'Reverence For Life' Creed

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK —(AP)— "I have a bad reputation among leopards," says Albert Schweitzer.

The famous medical missionary provides corrugated iron roofs for the chicken coops at his hospital compound in Lambarene, French Equatorial Africa, so the leopards can't eat up his flocks. With other animals and with people, he has a phenomenally good reputation. If he hasn't the greatest mind of our age, he has, all would agree, the greatest heart.

Other animals have learned by now that shooting is forbidden in Dr. Schweitzer's neighborhood. An integral part of his beliefs, now being formulated in the third volume of his "philosophy of civilization," is that his slogan, "reverence for life," applies to wild life as well as human.

Asked who banned shooting, he says: "I did," and he adds, in the words of Louis XIV, "I am the state." But he quickly disavows that claim, for the state there, he says, is the really beneficent and able French governor.

For the first time in 10 years, he left Africa last fall. After a winter in France, he is in this country on his first visit to lecture about Goethe at Aspen, Colo.

If you expect a man of his repute in the fields of medicine, music and missionary work to be stuffy and upstage, you are mistaken. Besides his remarks about leopards and the Louis XIV quotation, he had spent less than two days in this new country when he decided, half seriously, that the United States reminded him of the middle ages.

Some of your favorites are to be found on newly released Columbia long-playing disks. On the large records there are Mozart's quintet in D. Major and on the other side, the Mozart Quintet in C Minor, played by the Budapest string quartet, with Milton Katims viola. On a second large record are Prokofiev's "Scythian Suite" and Respighi's "Feste Romane," with Ormandy conducting the Philadelphia orchestra.

And on a third is Ravel's charming "L'Enfant Et Les Sortileges" by the French National Orchestra and Radio choir, Ernest Bour conducting. This ravel, clearly enunciated and sung excitingly if not perfectly, is one of the season's most distinguished recordings.

On the 10-inchers are Ormandy and the Philadelphians again in a varied program; Rimsky-Korsakov's "Antar" with Leinsdorf conducting the Cleveland orchestra: Gould's "Spirituals for Orchestra" and Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait," paired, with Rodzinski conducting the New York Philharmonic; and De Falla's "Suit Populaire Espagnole" and Hindemith's Sonata (1940), played by violinist Stern with Alexander Zakin at the piano.

Girls Mob Bandit In Holdup Try

Police Rescue Robber-Youth

WARREN — (AP) — Enraged women patrons at the Rancho Villa mobbed and thrashed an escaping young gunman Saturday after he and his buddy held up and robbed the night club of more than $600.

The robber, Clarence C. Wasser, 26, of Sharon, Pa., had to be rescued from the clawing women by sheriff's deputies and police. His holdup friend, Edward Golias, 25, also of Sharon, was picked up later on a highway and the patrons' money was returned.

Police told this story:

Wasser and Golias invaded the crowded Rancho Villa after staging another holdup at the Paradise cafe here, where they got $288.

At the Rancho Villa, young Wasser was first in. Snarling "This is a stickup, everybody to the back room," he fired a single shot into the ceiling from his .32 calibre pistol.

Then they forced the 200 patrons to lie stomach down on the dance floor and Golias proceeded to empty wallets and purses. Golias stuffed some of the money in his pockets, left the rest in the purses, which he tossed into a kettle.

During these proceedings, Bartender Anthony Dejacimo crawled out a side entrance unnoticed and ran to his home in the rear for a shotgun.

When Wasser got to the front door, Dejacimo was waiting behind a car with the gun. He fired. The shot missed. Inside, hearing the shot, Golias scampered out a side entrance and headed for the woods, dropping the kettle of wallets en route.

It was at this point that the crowd of women came running out and swarmed on Wasser. Police were on the scene by that time, too, and took him in custody.

Authorities found Golias within an hour, sauntering along a highway about five miles from here, the $300 still in his pockets.

EARL D. CRAVEN

Takes Office At Shaw Firm

Earl D. Craven is the new vice president of the Shaw Jewelry company, it was announced yesterday. Craven was elected at the company's annual meeting held in Mansfield recently.

Craven came to Mansfield from New York where he was a member of Crown Jewel Diamond syndicate, importers of gems, for many years. He has spent 28 years in the jewelry business.

The new vice president's office is in the store of the jewelry company, 81 North Main street.

Craven plans to move his family from the east soon to make their permanent residence here.

TRAFFIC CHECK—State highway patrolmen stop cars on U. S. Route 42, north of Mansfield to check vehicles for mechanical defects, license plates and drivers license. Twenty-five patrolmen took part in the check Friday afternoon. The check is conducted on a state-wide basis by the highway patrol, with check points set up on principal highways throughout Ohio. One of the main purposes is to prevent accidents caused by defective automobiles.

Patrolmen Check Cars

177 of 900 Have Defects

The first major traffic check in the Mansfield area Friday afternoon netted 177 vehicles guilty of some defect out of approximately 900 cars checked, according to Sergeant James Bower of the state highway patrol.

The check was held from 2 to 4 p. m. Friday, approximately five miles north of Mansfield on U. S. Route 42. Twenty-five state highway patrolmen from ten highway posts in the district took part in the check.

Only one arrest, for driving without a license, was made, but drivers of the 177 defective vehicles were given orders to repair the defects. The repair must be made within 72 hours and the car presented for re-inspection at a state highway post.

Vehicles traveling north and south were examined and traffic was lined up for almost a mile on several occasions. Drivers of cars and trucks that were free from defects were given an "OK" sticker for their windshields.

It was the third major traffic check in Ohio this month, but the first one in the Mansfield area. Minor checks are being held daily on secondary highways in this district.

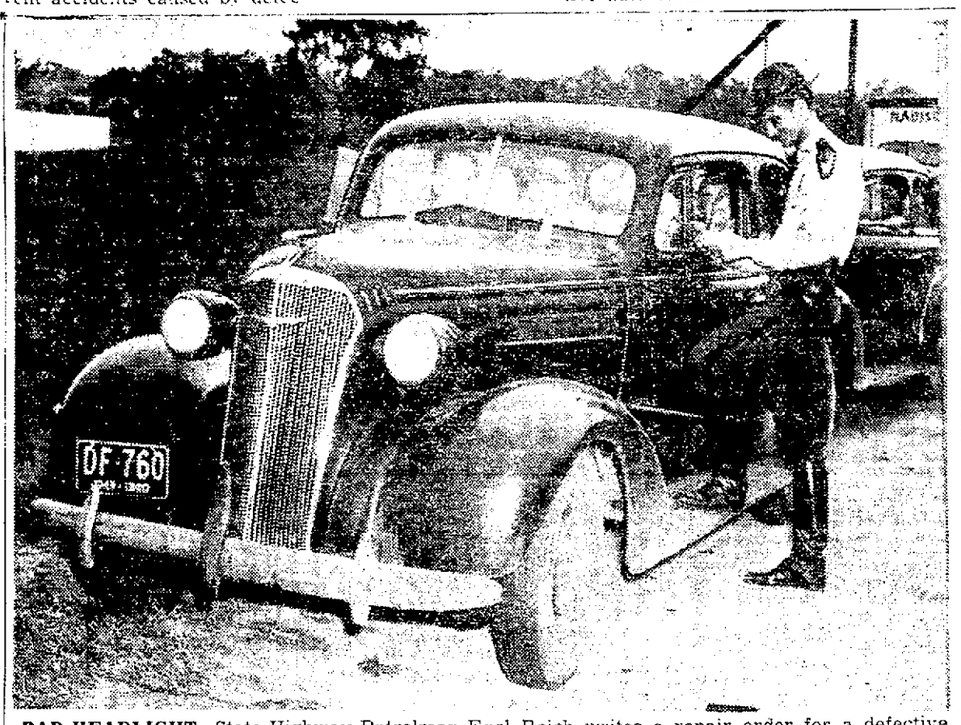
A breakdown of the defects found bad stoplights the major item, with 32 vehicles listed for this fault. Other defects and the number of vehicles: Bright lights, 29; tail lights, 25; headlights, 18; brakes, 13; emergency brake, 16; horns, 12; windshield wipers, 11; no license plates, 6; failure to sign drivers license, 3; mufflers, 5; only one license plate, 2; unsafe condition of vehicle, 2, and other defects, 3.

Drivers were asked to turn their headlights on, then flash their bright highway lights, run the motor with the brake pedal depressed to check the brakes. They were also directed to blow their horns and operate windshield wipers.

Says Less Men Work, Production Climbs

AKRON —(AP)— The rubber industry laid off 50,000 workers in the last year but retained production by making the other employes work harder, the CIO-United Rubber Workers contended Saturday.

"While workers are being laid off," said the URW executive board in a statement released at a special meeting on unemployment, "Those still at work are being compelled to produce more through rate cutting with its accompanying speed-up.



BAD HEADLIGHT—State Highway Patrolman Earl Reich writes a repair order for a defective left headlight on the car of Mrs. Thelma G. Altman of Cleveland. Patrolman Reich is stationed in Warren.

Michigan's Quick Justice Criminal Sits On Steps

Home Prized After Years In Prison

DETROIT — (AP) — Hour after hour these hot summer nights Rene De Meerleer lounges on the steps of his eastside Detroit home.

Friends — many he hardly recognizes any more — pass by. They ask him, "Rene, why don't you come to the show?" or "Rene, drop over to our place for a party."

The tall, 35-year-old man shakes his head and smiles wistfully.

Maybe, if you have time, you stop and ask him, "why?"

In his slow, gentle voice, Rene will speak frankly. He'll tell you about his crime. He and a companion shot a filling station attendant who interrupted them as they attempted to drive away with a tank of gasoline. That was in 1932. He was 17 then.

He'll tell you about the way he was brought into court the day after his arrest and tried, convicted and sentenced in a single day. He wasn't given a lawyer. His father cried out in futile protest as Rene was led away.

He'll tell you in detail about his long, arduous fight for freedom. This fight, carried to the United States supreme court, had drastic effects on Michigan judicial procedure.

Rene became known throughout the nation as Michigan's "original quick justice victim." Finally, after he'd been behind bars for 15 years, he was given a retrial.

His life imprisonment term for murder was reduced at the new trial to a manslaughter sentence. A year and a half later — last May 31 — Rene gained his freedom. He now is on three years parole.

The De Meerleer case brought a flood of "quick justice" appeals into state courts. The impact still is felt.

"CLOSER TO THINGS"

So Rene came back home to the place he had scoffed at as a wild, unprincipled youth—the place where, on May 16, 1932, officers stalked in and arrested him as he lay in bed.

That's why Rene says today: "I don't care about the movies. I can't think of any better entertainment than sitting here on the steps of my home.

"I'm closer to the things I was brought up to believe in," he says. "Things with meaning.

Yes, he talks like that. Almost like a preacher or a college professor except for his sudden disarming smile and the homely phrases that enliven his conversation.

Few college men graduate with a better education than Rene De Meerleer. He had only a seventh-grade education when he entered prison.

"I went to work in the library," he says. "Lots of time to myself. I started reading everything. Sopped it up like a blotter. Many of the prisoners read. It gave us things to discuss."

He delved into Greek, Egyptian, Roman history, the works of Schopenhauer, Plato, Aristotle, treatises on physics and astronomy.

In those years he worked in the bakery, power house, dining room, in the offices, and on the prison paper. He took up commercial art, mathematics, radio. He played football and baseball. After an eye injury on the gridiron, he became football coach.

FATHER REFUSES TO LIVE WITH CHILDREN

A man in his late fifties said to me the other day, "I bought my annuity because of the children." Well, I know his youngest was married, so at first I thought he meant his grandchildren. But he didn't. He meant just what he said. He had bought the annuity to protect his children against himself in his old age.

He went on to tell me the story that is so often true—how he had had to care for his own dad and mother in their old age; how it had hindered him in his plans for his own children; how he finally had had to bring the old folks into his own home, creating a situation in which nobody was happy.

He wasn't bitter about it because he was a good son. But I could see in his expression a grim determination to have his children fully protected against ever having to care for him in his dependency.

It's a smart idea all around. Both the parents and the children get the independence they all deserve. 'Our Fair City'

THE TRITE TITLE of this editorial, "Our Fair City", takes on new meaning for a great many residents at this time of year. Not only are trees luxuriantly in foliage, overhanging many of the streets, but gardens and lawns look quite attractive despite the long period without rain this summer.

What really makes Mansfield outstanding, however, at this season is the fact that thousands of people who have their homes here are getting out around the country and seeing hundreds of other towns.

Mansfield does not suffer by comparison!

A recent visitor from New York said: "I can't get over the wonderful roses that grow around here. They seem to even grow wild in fence corners. At home I break my back and spend all kinds of money on fancy fertilizer trying to get fine roses, but they can't compare with yours."

Just last week a woman who has made her home in Mansfield for several years returned to her home city for a visit. She said she was glad to get back to the familiar scenes where she had previously lived but that she was suddenly struck with the fact that the town she had remembered so fondly could not compare in the beauty of its homes and surroundings to her adopted Mansfield.

A trip through the west can provide novelty of scenery, of course. Canada may offer better fishing. Florida boasts milder temperatures in winter. But all in all—and look as far as you like—it's pretty hard to find a nicer place to live than right here in the heart of Richland county.

Moreover, as Mansfield expands, it grows out toward towns which will fit into the generally pleasant atmosphere of the present city. Lucas, Lexington, Ontario, Ashland—none differs greatly in topography or surroundings from Mansfield. And most of these towns have a civic spirit which equals or even surpasses our own.

Ashland has just acquired an attractive band shell and has previously gotten a fine park through private generosity. Soon, Lucas will dedicate a park built through cooperation of the townspeople and the State Highway department.

A Way To Make Jobs

THE AMERICAN LEGION has really got its hands on something, if it can muster the continuing energy to follow through on a job-making project the national organization has just announced. It proposes to get each local Legion post to set up a group of working committees to survey the local community and find out what kinds of goods and services, not now available, people want and are prepared to buy. The committees then will try to stimulate commercial projects to supply those wants.

The idea is taken from the town of Burnet, Tex., which set such a program in motion in 1947. Burnet increased its list of going business concerns by about twenty per cent, and raised the number of people at work by about the same amount. This was done by supplying real consumer needs not previously met; the Burnet people really went out and found new business, new ways for individuals to earn a livelihood.

Old business heads will advise that a period of slackening business activity is no time for new business ventures. But they are only partly right. Many a thriving industry or commercial enterprise of today was born in depression. It takes vision and courage to find what people are willing to spend their money for in a slack time, and set out to sell it to them. It's one way to lick a slump.

Let's Postpone Moving Capital

NOW THERE'S TALK—but not much—about moving the national capital from Washington, D. C., to a more central location, with "west of the Mississippi" offered as a suggestion by Frank Lloyd Wright, architect.

It seems that President Truman agrees with this idea, "in theory"—probably having Missouri in mind as an ideal location.

When Washington was selected as the site for the nation's capital it was then near the center of population, and the founding fathers—with all their wisdom—did not foresee the westward sweep of development and population that has marked the past century.

Now, however, the immensity of such an undertaking—and its tremendous costs—staggers the imagination even of those who have become accustomed to treat billions of dollars lightly, so it is just as well that agreement with the proposal be in "theory" only.

Another Bureaucratic Gesture

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of the arbitrary, bureaucratic method of operation by the Federal Communications commission is now brought home to Mansfield taxpayers who are being told they will have to spend approximately $10,000 to replace present police radio equipment.

The FCC has suddenly decided that police radios must operate on a higher frequency band after July 1 next year. This means, according to a radio manufacturer's representative, that the present equipment which cost about $5,500 when installed will be worth only "a couple hundred dollars."

Many other police departments similarly will find themselves with equipment made antiquated—not by use or time, but by the quixotic decision of Washington bureaucrats who apparently feel no responsibility toward individual rights or the taxpayers' pocketbooks since they are a law unto themselves.

Sharing

By ANNE CAMPBELL

Happiness is intensified:
The evening sky holds tints of blue,
When there is something to confide,
And I can share my joy with you.

When sorrow pulls the bright stars down,
And veils of gloom obstruct my view,
Ill-fortune tempers her dark frown
If I can share my grief with you.

We face both dull and sunny days,
But undismayed, I travel through
The hours, and penetrate their maze
Because I share my life with you.

Favorable Business Report Made

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Despite talk of depression the special congressional committee appointed to keep its finger on the nation's business pulse reports that "employment is higher than at any previous year in history except 1948." In fact, "recent data show an increase of nearly one million in June."

PEARSON

The committee staff hastily compiled this report over the 4th of July week-end—even while President Truman was preparing his economic message aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg.

Here are the highlights of the committee report:

1. Although unemployment in terms of 1948 records has risen, the best estimates show that it is not now at unreasonably high levels for the country as a whole.

2. About 1½ million more persons are jobless now after allowing for seasonal influences than last fall when unemployment was at a post-war low.

3. Practically all of the down trend has occurred in one field—manufacturing. Some declines in employment have also occurred in transportation, certain services, and mining. On the other hand, employment in trade, in construction, and in governmental activity has been holding up.

4. Another factor contributing to the rise in unemployment has been a substantial increase in the labor force—due to natural population growth plus the return of many veterans from school — without corresponding expansion in economic activity during the past year.

5. The number of persons who have only part-time jobs and want to work full-time has increased about one million in recent months. Most of the overtime prevalent in recent years has been eliminated."

Hardest hit by unemployment has been New England, where industrial jobs have dropped considerably.

The most favorable economic conditions were found in the west, where jobs actually increased in eight out of eleven major areas. A slight decline in unemployment was reported in Los Angeles, and a moderate decline in San Diego.

The committee on the economic report found that unemployment had fluctuated around the two-million level during 1947 and 1948. An unusually low figure for peacetime economy, this has risen to 3.8 million during the first six months of 1949.

Economy For Others

Gregarious, white - thatched Congressman Bill Whittington of Mississippi is in a strategic spot as chairman of the Public Works committee, to see that his state is not left behind when federal funds are ladled out for water conservation, rivers and harbors, and flood control. Mississippi ranks eighth in getting these improvements.

However, the Congressman is a strong believer in economy for other states. When Washington, which ranks 16th, and Oregon, 18th, and are partly arid, request water-control funds, they get nowhere with Whittington. When Charles Hodde, speaker of the Washington House of Representatives, testified for the proposed Columbia Valley authority in the northwest, Whittington interrupted constantly.

"We know what you're here for," he said, "more federal money. Why can't your state undertake the necessary development?"

Testimony by Oregon State Senator Vernon Bull met similar rebuffs. Whittington is a militant foe of the Columbia Valley authority, though 35 Mississippi counties benefit from the similar Tennessee Valley authority. So, as Bull took the stand, Whittington asked if he had testified before the Senate. Bull replied that he had not.

Whittington: (To clerk recording testimony) "This is off the record." (Then to Vernon Bull) "good, then we'll get rid of you fast. Are you in favor of this proposed CVA legislation?"

Bull: "Yes sir, I am. I believe that the people of the northwest—"

Whittington: (irritably) "Yes, yes, we've heard all that. Now give us your reasons—one, two, three."

Note — Whittington's curt treatment of these witnesses probably won't show up in the official record. As chairman, he has complete censorship over testimony, can revise or delete his own remarks.

Moscow's Long Memory

The story can now be told, of how the Soviet government schemed to dismember Czechoslovakia following the war.

It can be told because General Heliodor Pika is dead, executed last week by a communist government firing squad. But the story was not buried with him.

Pika, recently deputy chief of staff of the Czechoslovak army, had been military attache in Moscow during the war. It was there he heard of the Soviet plan to reduce his country to a group of small states, as it had been before the Masaryk-Wilson concept of a union of the Czechs and Slovaks.

Immediately Pika got word out of Moscow to President Benes in London. Benes promptly cabled Molotov and Stalin, asking for an explanation.

The Soviets then started an investigation to determine who had leaked the story, and eventually pinned down Pika as the source. But since he was the diplomatic representative of a friendly government, and had been one of those to warn the Russians of Hitler's plan to attack the U. S. S. R., they could take no action against him—at the time.

But the memory of Moscow is long. And when the communists took over Czechoslovakia, Pika was tried, and a few days ago sentenced to be shot. The sentence was brief, but it meant a great deal to the few people who knew. It read: "He was an enemy of the Soviet Union."

Penicillin To the Rescue

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE discovery of penicillin just a few years ago marked the beginning of a new era in medicine. Many infections which had previously left the best of doctors helpless are today quickly and, often, easily controlled by one of these wonder drugs.

Nowhere is the difference penicillin has made more marked then in a disorder known as subacute bacterial endocarditis, in which the valves of the heart are attacked by Streptococcus germs.

Formerly, this disease was 99 per cent fatal. Nowadays, thanks to penicillin, as shown by Dr. Leo Loewe, of New York City, a large percentage of these patients recover. Early symptoms include tiredness, weakness, fever, chilling sensations and sweating, most frequently at night.

Coughing and pain in the joints and muscles are frequent complaints. Later in the course of this illness, small bits of material break off from the affected heart valves and are carried to various parts of the body, thus causing such symptoms as sore fingers and toes, and hemorrhage into the back part of the eyeball.

If such symptoms occur, it is important that the diagnosis be confirmed by a culture of the blood. This is also necessary in order to identify the germs producing the condition. The sensitivity of these germs to penicillin can also be determined, thus aiding in deciding just how much penicillin should be used in the treatment, and whether or not it may be necessary to employ sulfonamide drugs with the penicillin.

—By KEN WOODMAN

DURING the recent heat wave the Michigan Highway department coolly announced that it's experiments last winter with clearing ice and snow from highways by means of radiant heating had been moderately successful.

* * *

Motorists who have blown out tires by driving too many hundred miles at a time on hot pavements in the past two weeks will probably inquire if it isn't possible to turn some cooling fluid into those radiant heater pipes in the summer.

* * *

If successful, this project might be extended to radiant-cooling a whole community in summer and defrosting it in winter. Which would be just dandy—if somebody didn't make a mistake and turn on the "heat" valve in July, sometime. Anyhow, Florida and Canada would probably lobby against it.

A Voice From the Country

Price Supports Encourage Waste

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

IT HAS BEEN SAID that democracy carries within itself the seeds of its own destruction and that the price of liberty is eternal vigilance. The two sayings go together as we are finding out more and more clearly every day. The seeds of destruction include the failure of the ordinary citizen to accept and practice his responsibility, the gradual tendency of the shiftless to vote to be taken care of, and the tendency of government itself to turn emergency measures into permanent policies. When this happens, the democratic state becomes weakened and decays.

BROMFIELD

Evidence of all three of these evils is very strong in our modern world and seems to be embodied in such proposals as the Brannan plan and other proposals which encourage irresponsibility and existence by planless day-by-day, hand-to-mouth improvisation.

Farm subsidies, supports and bribes began as temporary measures conceived to meet an emergency and under the New and the Fair Deal have become permanent policies. A temporary measure never solves any grave problem and its transmogrification into permanent policy merely serves to deepen and increase and make permanent the problem.

The farm problem during the depression years was not entirely economic. It was also the foreshadowing of what happens to an agriculture when it becomes waistful, expensive, destructive and non-productive. The good farmer during those years had a bad time but no worse and indeed a better time than most of his compatriots in other businesses and professions. The farmers who suffered were those who had the misfortune to be living on poor land, or land which they had helped to ruin. Another group of distressed farmers were those who overexpanded by buying more and more land at high prices when they could have increased the yields of the original home farm, sometimes as much as 50 per cent, simply by farming it in a better fashion without increasing taxes and taking on heavy mortgages.

The truth is that farm supports and bribes become convenient for two principal reasons (1) because we have on the whole a very poor agriculture with low yields per acre and consequent high production costs per acre for any given commodity; (2) overproduction of certain crops and resulting surpluses which run down the prices.

None of the government support plans from the beginning have operated to correct either of these destructive factors except in the most superficial and transient fashion. The original triple-A set-up did operate on the principle that if the farmer was to be subsidized, he should in turn make an effort to be a better farmer and adopt better practices, but this purpose has long been lost sight of in a wallow of bureaucratic and political hogwash. The effort to control planting and avoid surpluses has degenerated into a maze of bureaucratic and political controls operating to favor the bad farmer and penalize the good one. (This is one of the elements in the Brannan plan designed to appeal politically to the majority of farmers and the majority are bad farmers. In one sense it is the rankest class legislation.)

* * *

Tenth Feed Half.

MOST people do not realize that 50 per cent of the nation is fed by 10 per cent of the farmers. These are the good farmers and consequently the prosperous ones. The remaining 50 per cent of the population is fed by about 30 per cent of our farmers who are pretty good. The remaining 60 per cent of our agricultural population produces little more than it consumes. (These figures, of course, exclude the cotton, tobacco and soybean farmers but among their ranks are some of the worst farmers in the nation.)

Elaborate subsidies and support programs do not tend to improve our agriculture, check soil erosion or induce higher yields at lower costs and consequently lower prices to the consumer.

They work in exactly the opposite fashion, to maintain and encourage the bad farmer and the absentee landlord to farm badly in a slipshod, inefficient manner and to go on ruining our good land. For no matter how little he produces per acre or how inefficiently he operates, he is guaranteed a profit paid by the taxpayers of the rest of the nation.

In the case of surpluses, the price supports serve only to maintain and encourage overproduction. They guarantee the wheat, cotton and potato farmer a nice profit to raise wheat, that must be piled outside on the ground, or cotton, left for years in the warehouse, or potatoes, to be covered with kerosene so that they will not find their way to market as food and lessen the living cost of the rest of the population.

Preserves High Prices.

THE whole price support system operates to preserve a destructive agriculture and to maintain high prices for the consumer either in prices, taxes or both. Moreover, it serves to maintain on the land, at the expense to the taxpayer, some thousands of farmers who dislike farming to the point of hating their own soil but have not the energy to move off and make their land available to other men who could cherish it and build it up.

In a country where there is no more land to be had for free, there are thousands of energetic young men, longing for farms now owned and occupied by farmers who in England would not be permitted to farm them. Their inertia and inefficiency is subsidized by agricultural price supports.

Mr. Truman is using the Brannan plan as a (wo-edged political weapon to buy farm wofes and secure the support of labor at the same time. It is a dangerous plot not only to our economy but to our freedom, but it is not new. In essence, it is the same old plot cooked up by Henry Wallace when, as Secretary of Agriculture, he filled his department, not with agricultural experts or friends of the farmer but with fellow-travelers, communists and men like Lee Pressman and Beany Baldwin, his present campaign manager.

Let me repeat. Democracy carries within itself the seeds of its own destruction and the price of liberty is eternal vigilance. There are enough people in the United States to defeat such demagogic destructive plans, if they go to the polls and do their duty and let their congressmen know how they feel.

You do not make a prosperous agriculture by bribing farmers to plant what nobody wants and by subsidizing the man who is actually destroying our most fundamental natural resource, and the greatest renewable source of our real wealth.

Books and Babies Mix

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK—There are days in July when I just put all the mail in the waste paper basket and let it go at that.

Then there are other days when my spirit is so broken by the heat that—before I can stop myself—I am reading the daily accumulation. This was such a day and my reward has been rich, indeed.

Until I came across a communique from the Population Reference bureau in Washington, D. C., in today's mail, I had no idea that the birds and the bees had finally caught up with the nation's women college graduates. And, if you will pardon a humidified cliche how! or, maybe, wow!

INEZ ROBB

In the years between 1940 and 1947, when this nation was producing bumper crops of babies, the college girl—by this time more a woman than a girlie—was knitting timy garments at a rate almost double that at any previous time in the history of higher education for women.

The "reproduction rate" as the bureau poetically puts it, shot up 81 per cent among women with an A.B., a B.S., a Master's degree or better, during that crucial period when all America was out-producing itself.

In fact, the more the education among the ladies, the higher the rate of increase in babies.

The bureau, announcing, "a revolution in birth rates," points out that for the first time the reproduction rate of any woman even remotely associated with a daisy chain tops that of her less well educated sisters.

The reproduction rate among women with less than five years of readin', ritin' and rithmetic to their credit went up only 29 per cent between 1940-47.

But in that same period, women who had put in from one to three year sentences at college were reproducing their kind at a 59 per cent increase over previous production goals.

Women with high school diplomas produced 52 per cent more off-spring in this interim, while women with only five or six years in grade school were only to boost their reproduction rate by 21 per cent.

* * *

Old Slogan Fades

The old slogan that "the rich get richer and the poor get babies" ain't necessarily so, according to this population trend, the bureau points out. The hand that held a crib in college can also rock a cradle, it now appears.

Books and babies do mix, for while the average reproduction rate among American women increased 32 per cent during the war years, the college grad still set the record with the 81 per cent increase.

Now, having patted the college woman on her prettily bulging brow, the bureau proceeds to pull the rug out from under her. For, although college women outdid themselves from 1940-47, they only did so percentage wise.

For the ever-loving wife with less than five years of grade school education still produces 87 per cent more (or almost twice as many) young'uns as her sister in the sheepskin-and station-wagon set.

The only thing the college coed can take pride in is that she has cut the differential almost in half. Before 1940, the year when things began to pick up for the educated gal, the wife who still moves her lips when and if she reads produced 165 per cent more young 'uns than the college woman.

This minor Kinsey report on college women also discloses that the population reference bureau has discovered that graduates of co-educational and western colleges produce bigger families than the men and women panty-waists in the Eastern Ivy league.

Horace Greeley obviously had the right idea, only he should have included the girls, too.

Nature's Curiosities

By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALONG the surface of our sandy slope lay myriads of small white snail shells. Light and brittle, the occupant generally gone. I have often wondered how any creature could fashion his home so curiously, and where he gets the lime he uses for his white, fragile castle.

Snails are mollusks — soft, shell covered creatures — that act as destroyers of algae in the ponds and streams. The fleshy part inside the shell secretes the covering that becomes shell, blending in color with its natural surroundings. The inside of the shell is often polished, a beautiful pale pink.

The snail eats by rasping the outer covering from plants with his rough ribbon-like body, as he moves along. When annoyed, he draws his head into his home and a bit of shell on the toe of his foot closes it. His eyes are on the tips of his fleshy tentacles. He breathes through only one lung.

The female firefly is never given wings. She lives upon the reeds and grasses, and her favorite diet is snails. She follows the slug or snail up some moist leafy stem and gently punctures the soft under-side of him with an anesthetic which he cannot resist. Then she eats out his very vitals and the shell he has carried falls down.

Nature's processes are often curiously secretive. There is hardly an inch of earth that does not contain myriad living things, any one of which could be studied profitably.

The big wonder is that human kind has survived so long, when he understands so little about the universe of which he is a part.

"I walk across the meadow, dreaming of Parnassus,
A violet shrinks and pours its purple passion Beneath my feet.
An ant flees too late to save its universe.
From my unheeding tread....
My eyes in the sun-swimming clouds.
I soar toward heights I can never reach
Nor see that I am crushing common liveliness
Beneath my wingless feet."

—Gloria Goddard.

Child Health Survey Shocks Texas Town

SEYMOUR Tex — (AP) — Your child is the picture of health isn't he? Never an ache or pain Perfect physical specimen

That's what the folk of this town believed too about their youngsters That is they believed it until a young doctor just out of the Army Medical crops teamed up with a young school superintendent Their resulting school health survey shocked the town

Here are the figures

Students 1 100 Needing medical attention 750 Many children virtually blind although they didn't know it Sixteen children with bad hearts eleven with hernias and — pardon the word — 15 had itch

Seymour is a West Texas town, population about 4,000. The kids are tanned and healthy looking. They get all the fresh air they can breathe Hundreds of vigorous farm children pour into the schools each year Poverty so extreme that children can't get the proper diet is almost unknown.

That's why the town was so surprised

The facts wiped out opposition which had threatened to block the health program The findings sent parents scrambling to doctors to have their children's defects removed and illnesses treated

By then the whole community had pitched in to help

Teachers got a different shock this spring as school closed

Scholastic failures they found, had dropped 40 per cent in grammar school

Supt J W Hamilton said eye corrections 'made all the difference in the world Even the general health of pupils with eye defects improved with corrections"

His teammate in getting the health program started was Dr Charles Morriss Randal jr In the Army he had plenty of experience in mass health examinations. A practicing physician, he doubles as city health officer

Says Dr Randal "as far as we can find out this was the most complete check - up and the first on this scale every held in a Texas school"

Starting with these two, the program snowballed. The day of the examination, all the active doctors in town and two dentists closed their offices and reported at the school buildings Ten registered nurses also volunteered, as did approximately 50 parents

The check - ups were from head to foot First vaccinations and inoculations against six diseases were given Follow - up shots came later.

"The things the doctors found were startling to the parents," says Hamilton "For instance, we were amazed to find that our own six - year - old son Lyle, had a heart murmur"

Hamilton adds that the health program is 'not a fly - by - night proposition It will continue Anyone who comes into our schools in the future will get the same examinations and inoculations"

Dr Randal credits community cooperation with putting the program over The Lions club and the P—T A contributed money for the serums and other materials needed and the state donated some materials

Asks To View Bruised Limb

SUNDERLAND, ENG — (AP) — Susan Ellison, pretty bus conductress, complained in court Saturday about the strange antics of one of her passengers

'He threw a sandwich at me whistled on a bird warbler and then kicked me on the thigh, she said, and claimed she had a bruise to prove it

'About this bruise on the young lady's thigh," said defendant Henry Dinney, 47 'I would very much like to see it"

'I m sure you would" commented Judge J P Wilson.

He sentenced Dinney to a month in jail for assault and a month for being drunk and disorderly

Zion Lutheran Church Scene Of Open Church Formal Rite

The Zion Lutheran church in Loudonville, decorated in a display of greenery, a profusion of summer flowers and many altar tapers, was the setting June 26, for the open church wedding of Miss Wilma Ruth Clark of Shreve and Robert B. Jarvis jr., of 210 Pendleton street, Loudonville, at two o'clock.

Adding to the chancel decorations were the cathedral tapers burning in two seven branch candelabra which were lighted by the two ushers prior to the ceremony. Across the choir rail were garlands of roses and greenery.

A half hour organ prelude was presented by Miss Mary Arlene Smith. Soloists were Miss Mary Weddell and Stuart Akins, both of Shreve.

The Rev. Harold T. Grabau read the double ring wedding service for the bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Clark of Shreve, and the groom, who is the son of Mr and Mrs Robert B. Jarvis sr., of Loudonville.

During the exchange of vows, and as the bride and groom took their places at the white satin kneeling bench, placed before the altar for the prayer, the organist played "Thru the Years."

The bride approached the altar through an aisle of white, on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage.

Miss Clark's gown was of slipper satin and featured a fitted bodice, long fitted sleeves which formed points over the wrists and the long train. The gown had a round neckline of lace and satin inserts. From the neckline to the waist were tiny self covered satin buttons, fastening in the back. The fitted bodice and scalloped peplum of lace and satin inserts completed the gown.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place with a small lace hat adorned with apple blossoms. Miss Clark's jewelry consisted of four strand pearls, a gift from the groom. Her white Holman Bible was covered with a delicate arrangement of pink carnations and stephanotis.

Honored attendant for the bride was her sister, Mrs. Jewell Edwards of Apple Creek. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Bernard W. Jarvis and Mrs. Merle Frasher. The attendants wore identical gowns of taffeta faille. The matron of honor selected fuchsia and wore a braided headband of matching tulle featuring a large bow and streamers.

The bridesmaids wore gowns of turquoise taffeta faille and matching headbands. The three gowns featured square necklines, three quarter length sleeves, very full floor length skirts and large bustles. The attendants carried yellow carnations and stephanotis.

Bernard Jarvis, brother of the groom, served as best man and seating the guests in pews marked with white ribbon bows., were Howard Byers, brother-in-law of the groom, and Merle Frasher.

A reception was held in the social room of the church immediately following the ceremony for relatives and friends. The bride's table was centered with a four tiered caked topped with a miniature bridal couple. On either side of the cake were epergnettes holding lighted white tapers and red roses. Miss Norma Bruce of Shreve presided at the punch bowl while Mrs. Howard Byers and Mrs. Eugene Geibcut and served the cake after the bride and groom cut the first piece. Assisting were Mrs W. B. Conrad and Mrs. Charles Hans, aunts of the groom.

Mrs. Clark was gowned in a sheer bemberg print of grey, yellow and black. Her accessories were in black and white and on her shoulder she wore white carnations.

Mrs. Jarvis appeared at the wedding wearing a sheer aqua print and used white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was made up of white carnations.

The groom wore a pink carnation boutonniere while the remainder of the men in the wedding party had white carnations.

The couple presented gifts to the attendants after rehearsal Saturday evening.

Following a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Canada and Chicago, they are at home to their friends and relatives at 115½ Campbell street, Loudonville. For going away Mrs. Jarvis donned a white Palm Beach suit and used navy accessories. On her shoulder she wore the corsage taken from her Bible.

The bride graduated from Shreve high school with the class of 1949. The groom, a graduate of the Loudonville high school with the class of 1944, served with the Army Air corps for two years. He is employed by the Flxible company, Loudonville.

Horoscope

For Sunday, July 10

Sunday's astrological forecast shows a lack of cooperation or definite want of harmony and encouragement from those in influential positions Plans, hopes and wishes in this direction may miscarry, although a tactful considerate and reasonable course of action may break down such resistance Compromise and finesse may win out.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may be prepared for lack of desired support from those in high places whose influence is important on promoting ambitious plans Employers may be indisposed to agree on matters concerning promotion or fail to see eye to eye on suggestions for advancement, for putting over major operations of joint interest

A child born on this day may have a faculty for running counter to the wishes of parents employers or others in place and position Over - confidence or weak health may be at the root of this

For Monday, July 11

Monday's horoscope holds excellent augury for the launching of programs, campaigns or major explorations into new fields of action, with many promises of their advancement and spectacular progress and productive results Yet an erratic impulse, a rash attempt to batter down the doors of opposition or lack of support, may o'er 'leap itself and fall on the other side" Moderate and considerate conduct may avert the crash, but the personal judgment if blurred, not reliable, may impel wayward or blundering steps into wrong paths Shun sarcasm and public criticism of supporters

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, have promise of excellent openings for putting over important deals or explorations into fresh and untried fields of operation Ingenious and experimental plans may find cooperation from influential places, and yet such may be offended, alienated, or jeopardized by erratic moves, impetuosity, half-baked plans or schemes, or by over-confidence, criticism or sarcasm.

A child born on this day, while ambitious and talented in out of the ordinary ways of life, radical and experimental, yet its faculty for offending its elders or superiors may alienate needed cooperation. A blundering mentality or erratic impulses may defeat its fondest hopes and wishes.

1860 Found Hayesville At Its Peak

Vermillion Institute Attracted Students

By EVA M. CRAIG

HAYESVILLE — The stately Vermillion Institute building reminds passersby here of the height of this village's popularity in 1860 when more than 500 persons, mostly students, resided here.

The men's and women's dormitories have either been torn down or decayed away, unsafe for any kind of use. Vermillion Institute was the first high school and academy in Vermillion township.

This village, formerly known as Hayes Cross Roads, was laid out on Oct. 26, 1830 and was incorporated by the Ohio general assembly on March 2, 1839

Southeast of here was planted one of Johnny appleseed's famous orchards Captain Pipe, and his Indian village, lived in the regal style of a "forst king" to the northeast.

Originally the principal street was laid out on the road leading from Wooster to Mansfield with a row of 19 lots on each side. Each lot had a 60-foot frontage and 120-foot depth.

The road from Loudonville to Ashland crossed the principal street at right angles and originally had 20 lots on the east side and 18 lots on the west side. It had alleys, of 10-foot width, running parallel to the street. This land belonged to John Cox and Linus Hayes.

Tiro Quarry Pool Purchase Sought For Use of Firemen

TIRO — A movement is on in the community to create a pool of water for use in fighting fires. Contributions are being raised to pay for the dredging of the old stone quarry on the Charles May farm at the eastern edge of Tiro and it is expected that dredging work will start the first of this week

The work will be done by Chapin and Chapin of Norwalk evcavating contractors.

When the mud and debris has been removed from the quarry bed a pool of spring water approximately 100 feet by 130 feet will be available for use of the Tiro-Auburn fire department. The water will be five to six feet in depth at the deepest point, according to fire department officials.

L. M and Donald Pope have undertaken the task of raising the funds to pay for the project Pope stated the contractor has agreed to do the dredging for $210 and will give the local people time in which to make the payment

He is requesting all residents of the community who wish to help with the project to make their contributions to him or Donald Pope of Fire Chief M C Gooding. One contribution of $25 has been promised donations of any amount will be accepted

The Tiro Business club voted to donate $75.

Fire department officials have been worried for some time about the fact that there is no adequate supply of water in Tiro or the surrounding area during dry weather to provide water for fighting a large fire The streams shrink to a shallow depth making it difficult if not impossible to pump water out with the pumping equipment of the fire truck and auxilary water truck.

They declare the pool in the quarry site will provide sufficient water at all times and the quarry will be easily accessible to the road making it easy to fill the fire truck and water truck. The quarry is fed by springs that flow the entire year.

Charles May, owner of the quarry site, offered the use of the pool to the fire department if the firemen would pay for the dredging of the silt from the quarry He has agreed to make the water available.

Guardsmen Start Training In East

WAR GAMES — About 180 airmen from the 164th Air National Guard Fighter squadron line up for roll call before boarding their air-conditioned Pullman which took them yesterday from Mansfield to Dover, Delaware. The Mansfield airmen are participating in their first annual encampment. Many of the youths in the group left home for the first time. Others are seasoned veterans of World War II, to whom the experience of traveling to camp is nothing new. Part of the group went earlier in the week in a truck convoy, and another group departed by plane later Saturday. The squadron, 300-strong, will train for two weeks at the Dover Air Force base.

Pilots Practice Warfare

Go to Delaware By Plane, Train

Twenty-three airplanes zoomed out of municipal airport yesterday as the last group of the 164th Air National Guard Fighter squadron left for Dover, Del.

The fighter squadron is at the Dover Air Force base today, beginning 15 days of intensive training. The more than 300 airmen have waited a year until they could try their wings in their first maneuvers.

The bulk of the squadron, 180 men, left Mansfield by train at midnight Friday. When the squadron returns to its base many of the men will be in line for promotion if they qualify during this "shake-down."

Besides the actual flight training, all the ground-crewmen from airplane mechanics to communications experts will participate in the training program.

The pilots will get gunnery training with both air-to-air and air-to-ground targets.

WORK AS UNIT

Airmen from Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, all members of the 55th Fighter Wing under the command of Brig. Gen. Errol Zistel, will work together as one unit.

The big push comes during the second week when there will be a "mock invasion" of our east coast. The air squadron will fly tactical and defense missions against the "enemy" as it swarms over our shores.

"The National Guardsmen have been given splendid cooperation by their employers," Capt. William O. Ash, commanding officer, said yesterday. Many of their employers have even guaranteed their pay while the men are away on the maneuvers.

Several of the airmen have personal problems which may require their return to Mansfield for a few days. Ash said the National Guard will do all it can to provide air transportation for these men.

Faces Charge In County Auto Death

Clevelander Booked For Manslaughter

He is accused in the death of Walter Glenn Lehman, 52, Shelby farmer.

The charge was filed Saturday by Prosecuting Attorney Harold Lutz and warrant for Spino's arrest was issued by municipal court, Sheriff E. P. Long said.

Spino will appear in court Monday morning if he is able, Long added.

Officials at Shelby Memorial hospital where Spino was taken following the accident said he was released Friday afternoon. He suffered several fractured ribs in the accident.

Seven persons were injured in the crash that occurred at the intersection of Plymouth-Springmill and Udyke roads.

Sheriff's deputies said witnesses stated Spino failed to stop at a stop sign at the intersection, his car colliding with a truck driven by Lehman.

Appointment Of Switzer Irks Gillette

Political Parallel Confronts Truman

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A strange and possibly dramatic parallel may be enacted if Senator Guy Gillette, Iowa Democrat, goes before the senate judiciary committee to fight President Truman's appointment of Carroll O. Switzer as federal judge for the southern district of Iowa.

The committee has delayed hearings indefinitely with some signs that it may not act on the appointment this session.

But if President Truman doesn't withdraw the nomination, the showdown will find Gillette casting himself in the role of a Democratic senator who says he has been humiliated by a Democratic president's appointment of a member of the judiciary.

It is the same role played dramatically — and successfully — 10 years ago by Senator Harry F. Byrd and the late Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrats.

Ten years ago President Roosevelt asked Byrd and Glass who they wanted to fill Virginia judgeship. The two senators got together, settled on two men and sent their names along to the Justice department.

But Roosevelt, who long before had classed Byrd as an enemy and had tabbed Glass as an "unreconstructed rebel" because of his opposition to the New Deal program, took a back - hand slap at the two.

Glass told the judiciary committee that Roosevelt had given the Virginia governor "veto power" over the nominations made by the two senators, a charge that Price immediately denied.

Byrd said the nomination had been "made for the purpose of being personally offensive" to the Virginia senators. The senate was so impressed with this argument that it voted 72 to nine against confirming Roberts. Harry S. Truman, then a senator from Missouri, voted against Roberts.

Gillette has raised the same sort of charge in the Switzer case. He has asserted that the nomination was sent to the senate over his "strong objection" and "with some evidence of intentional, if not discourteous, by - passing of the constitutional rights and prerogatives of the United States Senate in appointments of this type."

The nominee was indorsed by the Iowa Democratic chairman, the vice chairman, the national committeeman and the national committeewoman. Mr. Truman passed up the senator's recommendations for two other men for the post.

9 Drivers Draw Fines

Assessments Total $175 In City Court

Nine persons were fined $175 and costs Saturday in municipal court for various traffic violations.

Arthur H. Ayres, 23, of 57 Harmon avenue, was fined $75 and costs and his driver's license was suspended for six months, when he admitted driving his car while under the influence of alcohol.

He was arrested by city police at 2:45 a. m. Saturday on West Sixth street.

Three persons were fined $10 and costs each on charges of speeding. They were Glen E. Manken, of Columbus; Eugene H. Snider, of Shelby and Frank Johnson, of Cleveland. Paul Garber, of Dayton, forfeited $25 bond by not appearing in court on charge of speeding.

Fined $15 and costs each on a charge of unsafe operation were Henry A. Briliski, of 355 Springmill street, and Kenneth Smith, of Harding road.

Peter B. Dotterman, of 222 Orange street, was fined $10 and costs for using more than one-half of the highway.

For driving a car with a temporary permit and not accompanied by a licensed driver, Alex Wihre, of 358 East Second street was fined $5 and costs.

Supply of Adoptive Children Runs Below Demand In County

By MARGUERITE MILLER

One shortage in Richland county which probably will never catch up with the demand is that of adoptive children.

So far this year, 34 children have been put in prospective adoption homes. The ratio closely follows the adoption scale set for the county the past two years.

But there's more prospective parents than adoptable babies.

If we had 500 babies we could place every one of them yet this year in the county," stated Probate-Juvenile Judge Stuart H. Cramer through whose office all adoptions are consumated.

That figure gives the reader an idea of the number of couples, cheated of natural children, who are on the baby "waiting list" of the Child Welfare Board.

Since the first of the year 20 pre - school aged children, including nine babies, have been placed in foster homes in the county. Most of them are now in the "observation period" during which the child is watched for inherent traits which may have some bearing in the type of home chosen for him by the board.

Like it or not, the rate of births to unwed mothers is a deciding factor in the county's supply of adoptable children. Judge Cramer says the rate of illegitimate births has dropped off "40 to 50 per cent" since the war.

Mrs. Laura Reece, matron at the Children's Home and case work supervisor for the Welfare Board, however, said births to unwed mothers "have just about doubled during the first six months of this year over last year for the same period."

Mrs. Reece believes the upsurgence in juvenile delinquency is in part to blame and that the awareness of the community services in such instances have brought more cases to the attention of the board.

Adoptions for the past two years have been pretty evenly divided between step - father adoptions and no - relationship contracts. Of the 75 children legally adopted last year, 38 were adopted by step-fathers, 33 were taken by couples of no relationship, one was adopted by the maternal grandparents, one by a maternal aunt and two by paternal aunts.

By no means all foster home children can be adopted. Some of the children in foster homes, who according to Mrs. Reece are generally there because of broken homes, are supported by one of the parents. For the most part, the children are of pre - school age and recommended to foster homes instead of to the Children's Home.

Only those children, legally turned over to the county by one or both of their parents, can be adopted by another couple.

And the adoption procedure is as strict as any loyalty test ever conceived.

Of primary conern to the Child Welfare Board, under whose jurisdiction comes all investigation leading up to adoption, is the reason for wanting the child. Usually, Mrs. Reece said, the child to be adopted is placed in a home where, because of physical reasons, no child can be born.

"The Board tries to give the child a home which will give it the best education and cultural background in addition to the care and love it deserves.

After the reason for wanting the child is established, the board begins the check - up on the moral, religious, physical and financial standing of the prospective parents.

Financial standing, however, is secondary to the final decision of the board, Mrs. Reece said.

"Usually a check of the nationality of the prospective parents against the nationality of the child is as good as any matching method you can use," she added.

As to other characteristics, we feel that a child will pick up and assume the habits and ways of the people close to it."

She added, however, that the board is careful not to place a slow child in a home where parents hope for their child to be a college graduate and an honor pupil. For this reason, extra watchfullness is exercised during the foster home "observation period".

Besides the legal adoption procedure, there is a "free" foster home plan in effect in Richland county, by which a couple may take a child, raise it as their own, and yet never claim legal relationship to the child. Mrs. Reece said this works out well in many cases where the couples do not want to assume complete responsibility for an adopted child.

Hearing Set For Officer

Dismissal Airing Slated Tomorrow

Civil service commission hearing for Roger C. Zimmerman, 26, of 484 South Diamond street, dismissed Mansfield police officer, will be held at 7 p. m. Monday in the municipal court room at the city building.

The officer was dismissed from the police force on June 13 by Service-Safety Director E. T. Garrison following testimony that he had shielded the identity of a hit-skip driver.

Zimmerman will be represented at the hearing by Attorneys Robert Lett and James V. Will.

The civil service commission has the authority to re-instate Zimmerman or lessen the service-safety director's dismissal order.

Following testimony in municipal court on June 8, that Zimmerman had told Luther Walker, 32 of Amoy, to "forget about" a hit-skip accident, the patrolman was placed under permanent suspension by Police Chief Jesse J. Scwhab.

When on the witness stand charged with leaving the scene of an accident in which six-year-old Marica McNaul of 57 State street was injured, Walker said he had told the patrolman about the accident.

Zimmerman has denied any knowledge that Walker was involved in the hit-skip that occurred on May 20.

Walker was arrested four days after the accident. After his arrest he admitted he was the driver of the car that injured the girl, but he said the policeman had told him "he would take care of it."

Schedule Ceremony

Appointment Of Switzer Irks Gillette

Political Parallel Confronts Truman

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A strange and possibly dramatic parallel may be enacted if Senator Guy Gillette, Iowa Democrat, goes before the senate judiciary committee to fight President Truman's appointment of Carroll O Switzer as federal judge for the southern district of Iowa.

The committee has delayed hearings indefinitely with some signs that it may not act on the appointment this session.

But if President Truman doesn't withdraw the nomination, the showdown will find Gillette casting himself in the role of a Democratic senator who says he has been humiliated by a Democratic president's appointment of a member of the judiciary.

It is the same role played dramatically — and successfully — 10 years ago by Senator Harry F. Byrd and the late Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrats.

Ten years ago President Roosevelt asked Byrd and Glass who they wanted to fill Virginia judgeship. The two senators got together, settled on two men and sent their names along to the Justice department.

But Roosevelt, who long before had classed Byrd as an enemy and had tabbed Glass as an "unreconstructed rebel" because of his opposition to the New Deal program, took a back - hand slap at the two.

Glass told the judiciary committee that Roosevelt had given the Virginia governor "veto power" over the nominations made by the two senators, a charge that Price immediately denied.

Byrd said the nomination had been "made for the purpose of being personally offensive" to the Virginia senators. The senate was so impressed with this argument that it voted 72 to nine against confirming Roberts. Harry S. Truman, then a senator from Missouri, voted against Roberts

Gillette has raised the same sort of charge in the Switzer case. He has asserted that the nomination was sent to the senate over his "strong objection" and "with some evidence of intentional, if not discourteous, by - passing of the constitutional rights and prerogatives of the United States Senate in appointments of this type."

The nominee was indorsed by the Iowa Democratic chairman, the vice chairman, the national committeeman and the national committeewoman. Mr. Truman passed up the senator's recommendations for two other men for the post.

Supply of Adoptive Children Runs Below Demand In County

By MARGUERITE MILLER

One shortage in Richland county which probably will never catch up with the demand is that of adoptive children.

So far this year, 34 children have been put in prospective adoption homes. The ratio closely follows the adoption scale set for the county the past two years.

But there's more prospective parents than adoptable babies.

If we had 500 babies we could place every one of them yet this year in the county," stated Probate-Juvenile Judge Stuart H. Cramer through whose office all adoptions are consumated.

That figure gives the reader an idea of the number of couples, cheated of natural children, who are on the baby "waiting list" of the Child Welfare Board.

Since the first of the year 20 pre - school aged children, including nine babies, have been placed in foster homes in the county. Most of them are now in the "observation period" during which the child is watched for inherent traits which may have some bearing in the type of home chosen for him by the board.

Like it or not, the rate of births to unwed mothers is a deciding factor in the county's supply of adoptable children. Judge Cramer says the rate of illegitimate births has dropped off "40 to 50 per cent" since the war.

Mrs. Laura Reece, matron at the Children's Home and case work supervisor for the Welfare Board, however, said births to unwed mothers "have just about doubled during the first six months of this year over last year for the same period"

Mrs. Reece believes the upsurgence in juvenile delinquency is in part to blame and that the awareness of the community services in such instances have brought more cases to the attention of the board.

Adoptions for the past two years have been pretty evenly divided between step - father adoptions and no - relationship contracts. Of the 75 children legally adopted last year, 38 were adopted by step-fathers, 33 were taken by couples of no relationship, one was adopted by the maternal grandparents; one by a maternal aunt and two by paternal aunts.

By no means all foster home children can be adopted. Some of the children in foster homes, who according to Mrs. Reece are generally there because of broken homes, are supported by one of the parents. For the most part, the children are of pre - school age and recommended to foster homes instead of to the Children's Home.

Only those children, legally turned over to the county by one or both of their parents, can be adopted by another couple.

And the adoption procedure is as strict as any loyalty test ever conceived.

Of primary conern to the Child Welfare Board, under whose jurisdiction comes all investigation leading up to adoption, is the reason for wanting the child. Usually, Mrs. Reece said, the child to be adopted is placed in a home where, because of physical reasons, no child can be born.

"The Board tries to give the child a home which will give it the best education and cultural background in addition to the care and love it deserves.

After the reason for wanting the child is established, the board begins the check - up on the moral, religious, physical and financial standing of the prospective parents.

Financial standing, however, is secondary to the final decision of the board, Mrs. Reece said.

"Usually a check of the nationality of the prospective parents against the nationality of the child is as good as any matching method you can use," she added.

As to other characteristics, we feel that a child will pick up and assume the habits and ways of the people close to it."

She added, however, that the board is careful not to place a slow child in a home where parents hope for their child to be a college graduate and an honor pupil. For this reason, extra watchfullness is exercised during the foster home "observation period".

Besides the legal adoption procedure, there is a "free" foster home plan in effect in Richland county, by which a couple may take a child, raise it as their own, and yet never claim legal relationship to the child. Mrs. Reece said this works out well in many cases where the couples do not want to assume complete responsibility for an adopted child.

Hearing Set For Officer

Dismissal Airing Slated Tomorrow

Civil service commission hearing for Roger C. Zimmerman, 26, of 484 South Diamond street, dismissed Mansfield police officer, will be held at 7 p. m. Monday in the municipal court room at the city building.

The officer was dismissed from the police force on June 13 by Service-Safety Director E. T. Garrison following testimony that he had shielded the identity of a hit-skip driver.

Zimmerman will be represented at the hearing by Attorneys Robert Lett and James V. Will.

The civil service commission has the authority to re-instate Zimmerman or lessen the service-safety director's dismissal order.

Following testimony in municipal court on June 8, that Zimmerman had told Luther Walker, 32 of Amoy, to "forget about" a hit-skip accident, the patrolman was placed under permanent suspension by Police Chief Jesse J. Scwhab.

When on the witness stand charged with leaving the scene of an accident in which six-year-old Marica McNaul of 57 State street was injured, Walker said he had told the patrolman about the accident.

Zimmerman has denied any knowledge that Walker was involved in the hit-skip that occurred on May 20.

Walker was arrested four days after the accident. After his arrest he admitted he was the driver of the car that injured the girl, but he said the policeman had told him "he would take care of it."

Pilots Practice Warfare

Go to Delaware By Plane, Train

Twenty-three airplanes zoomed out of municipal airport yesterday as the last group of the 164th Air National Guard Fighter squadron left for Dover, Del.

The fighter squadron is at the Dover Air Force base today, beginning 15 days of intensive training. The more than 300 airmen have waited a year until they could try their wings in their first maneuvers.

The bulk of the squadron, 180 men, left Mansfield by train at midnight Friday. When the squadron returns to its base many of the men will be in line for promotion if they qualify during this "shake-down."

Besides the actual flight training, all the ground-crewmen from airplane mechanics to communications experts will participate in the training program.

The pilots will get gunnery training with both air-to-air and air-to-ground targets.

WORK AS UNIT

Airmen from Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, all members of the 55th Fighter Wing under the command of Brig. Gen. Errol Zistel, will work together as one unit.

The big push comes during the second week when there will be a "mock invasion" of our east coast. The air squadron will fly tactical and defense missions against the "enemy" as it swarms over our shores.

"The National Guardsmen have been given splendid cooperation by their employers," Capt. William O. Ash, commanding officer, said yesterday. Many of their employers have even guaranteed their pay while the men are away on the maneuvers.

Several of the airmen have personal problems which may require their return to Mansfield for a few days Ash said the National Guard will do all it can to provide air transportation for these men.

CAUSES A STIR IN ICED KETTLE—This suggestion for how to keep cool in these blistering days comes from the Home Furniture show in Chicago where a giant kettle has been on display. So has Betty Thomas, who occupies it. It seems she is sitting in ice water while sipping iced tea through a straw. (International)

New Lending Policy Assists Remodeling

New policies of the Federal Housing Agency permit extensive remodeling of existing houses with only a small financial outlay each month, it was pointed out today by the Construction Research Bureau, New York clearing house for building information.

The new FHA ruling allows a home-owner to borrow as much as $2,500 for home improvement without a down payment, but the job is sold in a "package," instead of splitting it up into several individual contracts.

PAYMENT ENDED

Thus the monthly sum to be set aside for repayment of the 3 - year loan is smaller than if several contracts were entered in to by the home-owner for a shorter period, each contract requiring a down payment and monthly payment of its own. Previously, the FHA required a 10 per cent down payment on each contract.

Virtually any appliance, material or operation that will improve the value of the home can be included in the new FHA plan. Many building contractors are selling complete jobs to include new siding; new roof; complete, full - thick mineral wool insulation; and conversion or remodeling of heating equipment.

Because the relatively long repayment period eases the payments, it is now possible for a home-owner to install an extra lavatory in an unused alcove or pantry, to build a garage, or remodel the kitchen.

BOON FOR LANDLORDS

Electrical installations, plumbing, conversion of attics to living quarters, basement recreation rooms, and purchase of large home appliances such as refrigerators, automatic washers and garbage disposal units, can now be included in a single loan.

Since the ruling permits two simultaneous projects by the same owner, with a top limit of $5,000, it gives owners of rental properties an opportunity to modernize such houses or to provide additional living space in them. Most lending institutions approved by the FHA are now making the new type of home improvement loan.

Two Flee In Tiny Boat

NEW YORK — (AP) — Two Estonians who fled the Russian zone of Germany in a small home-made boat arrived Saturday on the liner Brittanic which picked them up July 4 in the North Atlantic.

They said they had embarked on their dangerous voyage because "there is no future there (in Soviet-occupied Germany) and no possibility to live a decent life."

The man, Hulmuth Russow, 38, and Volker Harpe, 20, hope to be allowed to go to British Columbia in Canada to farm. Immigration officials said they probably would be detained at Ellis island until proper documents could be obtained for their trip to Canada.

The wind-burned pair said they completed their 33-foot boat last September and headed west from the coast until they reached Spain, and set out from there for Canada five weeks ago.

Their small craft took a beating from heavy North Atlantic seas until the mast was broken and the auxiliary motor failed. On July 4, they saw the Britannic and sent up distress flares.

Four Scale Yukon Peak

MONTREAL — (AP) — Four members of an Arctic Institute of North America expedition have reached the peak of 15,700-foot Mount Vancouver in the Yukon. Institute officials said it is the highest mountain ever to be scaled in North America.

Col. P. D. Baird of the Montreal branch said Saturday he received a telegram advising him that Noel Odell of Vancouver, William R. Hainsworth, R. S. McGarter of Stanford university in California, and Alan Bruce-Robertson of Toronto had reached the peak Tuesday.

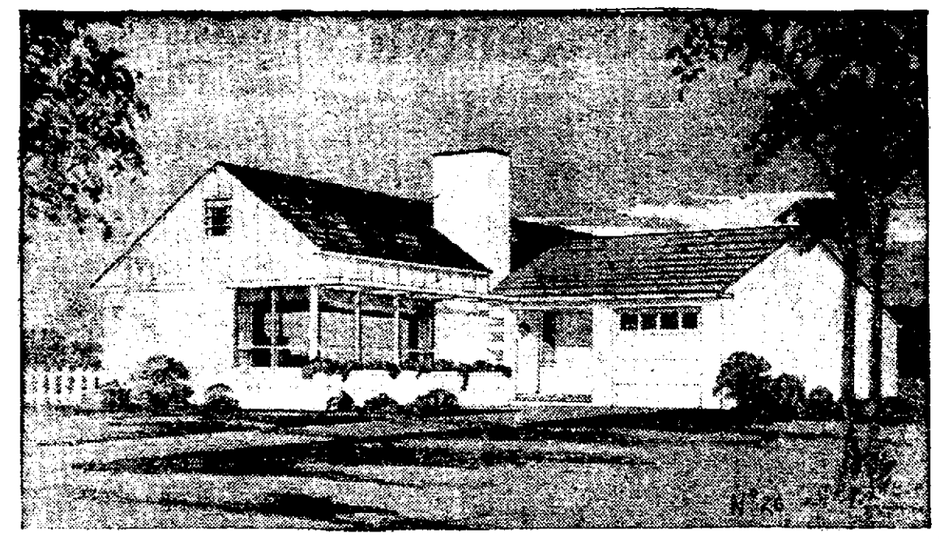
Walter A. Wood, director of the institute's New York branch and leader of the expedition, was forced by food poisoning to turn back before reaching the peak.

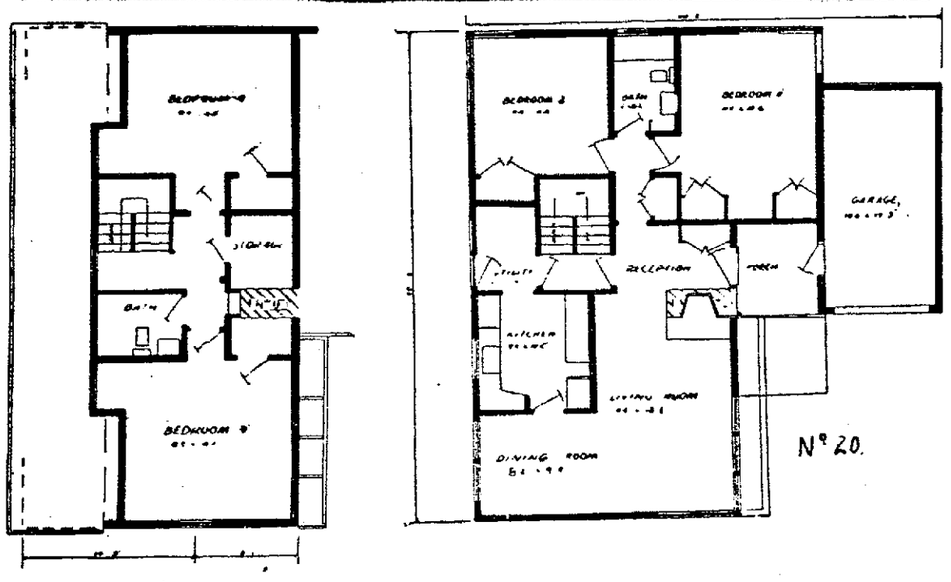
Col. Baird had no information on how long it took to make the ascent.

County Sales Tax Revenue Declines

Richland county's sales tax revenue during the first half of this year dropped approximately $90,000 under receipts for the corresponding six months last year.

Receipts to the last of June, 1949, totaled $672,549. The figure for the same period last year was $763,247. The final full week of June showed revenue of $25,997 as compared with $31,660 in that week last year.





Small Home Design Number 20

Compact House Has Air of Spaciousness

This small home combines a great deal of beauty in a compact design, but will provide four bedrooms for the larger family. If desired, the second floor could remain unfinished until a later date, thereby saving considerable original cost in building this home.

The manner in which the garage is attached to this particular home gives it an unusually pretentious look. The large corner picture window in the living room also adds to this look of spaciousness.

The exterior walls are designed to be constructed of cement, cinder blocks or brick, while the second story is shown in wide vertical wood siding. This combination of outside building materials is another factor in improving the looks of this small home.

You enter this home through a protected front porch. The door opens directly into a reception room with a large coat closet on the right. The living room has a natural fireplace in one corner and a large picture window in another corner. The living-dining rooms are combined in an L-shape, which makes this open planned area seem a great deal larger than it really is. The dining room also has picture windows along one entire wall.

From the dining room you enter directly into a well planned kitchen and utility room. The kitchen has a sink with a large picture window over it and a wide shelf with room for plants underneath, which adds a gay touch to this work center. There is ample working space on both sides of this sink. Continuing through the kitchen you enter the utility room where you have sufficient space for modern automatic laundry equipment, if you cared to have it in this area.

Between front reception hall and the utility room you have a passageway which opens directly on to the stairs leading to the basement and other stairs going to the second floor.

Building plans show a basement under the entire house with ample room for recreation room, utility and heating room, but for economy's sake, it would be possible to change the plans slightly and eliminate most or all of this basement, providing you did not need a recreation room.

A similar change of plans would be possible if you did not need four bedrooms. The rear bedroom downstairs could be changed into a hobby shop or den.

You will note the two downstairs bedrooms are both large and both have cross ventilation. Bedroom No. 1 has two large storage closets which could employ sliding doors rather than swinging doors as shown on the floor plan, and these sliding doors would eliminate the space ordinarily used by the swing of the other type door. The same thing applies to downstairs bedroom No. 2.

There is a large bathroom located between these two downstairs bedrooms and a linen closet located in the hall outside. You will note how these two bedrooms and bath can be closed off from the rest of the house if so desired.

The upstairs in this house has sufficient room for two large bedrooms, bath, hallway and large storage closet.

Complete building plans may be obtained by sending check or money order in the amount of $5.00 for the first set of plans and $2.50 for each additional set to the Scale Model Home Planning company, 819 Lafayette Bldg., Detroit, 26, Mich.

James Whyte Rites Monday

Mr. Whyte died at the Richland county home Friday afternoon. He died of a cerebral hemorrhage. He had been partially paralyzed for the past 22 years. Prior to that time he was an employe of the Ideal Electric Manufacturing company.

He was born in Ashland, and had been a resident of Richland county for 30 years. He was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Alan Jackson, Miss Barbara Whyte, and Miss Sarah Jane Whyte, all of Mansfield; a son, Robert Francis Whyte of Chicago; and two grandchildren.

The family has requested flowers be omitted.

Primitive Methods Pay Off

Materials Scarce But Madrid Builds

MADRID — One of the things which most impresses visitors to Madrid is the great amount of new construction going on.

You can't buy a nail in any Madrid hardware store, yet dozens of new hotels, stores, office buildings, apartment houses and workers' colonies are springing up on all sides.

Visitors say that nowhere, either in the United States or abroad, have they seen so much new building in any one city.

The owner of a big new office building said:

"We have had to fight for every nail, every sack of cement, every foot of electric wiring. Scarcities have put all construction materials on the black market. Quality is poor and prices are high. But somehow we were able to get what we needed."

Among the new Madrid edifices made ready for occupancy during the past year are two big hotels the Emperor and the Astoria, and a whole block of combination office and apartment buildings.

Both new hotels are located on the Avenda Jose Antonio, which was known as the Gran Via before the Spanish civil war, and which has now supplanted the Alcala as Madrid's business and theatrical center.

The Emperor, with its roof swimming pool and luxury appointings, is a growing favorite with visiting Americans. It is taking a lot of commercial trade away from the once popular Palace because of its more central location and relatively reasonable prices.

One of the biggest construction enterprises launched in Spain in many years is a 27-story building now going up on the east side of the Plaza de Espana. It is to be ultra - modern, with shops, garages, office - space, resident quarters, express elevators and even a bus terminal.

Little by little, Spanish construction methods are becoming modernized. But the process is slow, and the system used by most Spanish bricklayers, steel workers and carpenters would drive their American counterparts crazy.

Steam shovels are seldom to be seen. Most excavation work is still done by hand, with processions of laborers toiling up ramps carrying little wicker baskets of earth. Scaffolding consists principally of barked young trees lashed shakily together with pieces of rope.

Most cement mixing is done by hand, but occasionally one sees a dinky little mixer chugging wearily along, coughing out pitiful little dribbles of sand and cement. The builders themselves are equipped with tools which the American worker would regard as little short of primitive.

That is why it sometimes takes from five to ten years to build a new office building or apartment house in Spain.

Argentinians Celebrate Independence

BUENOS AIRES — (AP) — Argentina celebrated her 133rd anniversary of independence from Spain Saturday by pardoning all foreigners who have entered the country illegally.

President Juan D. Peron's decree said the action was taken "in homage to the national day of rejoicing."

The decree affects:

Hundreds of persons who entered the country secretly or are here without proper documents.

A large number of European Jewish refugees who have been smuggled across the borderline river from Uruguay.

Fascist Italians believed to be here under assumed names.

Stowaways reaching Buenos Aires by ship.

The decree gives the illegal immigrants until Sept. 30 to apply for permanent residence permission and waives any penalties they may have incurred by unlawful entry.

New Mobile Radio Plans Under Way

Firm Organizes Network In N. Y.

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK —(AP)— A network of independent radio-telephone stations is being organized here with the goal of providing a new nationwide mobile service for the general public.

It will differ from the mobile telephone service operated by Bell system and other telephone companies in which you can talk direct on your automobile set to any regular phone. This system already provides nationwide connections enabling the user to call anyone just as he could from his home telephone.

The new set-up, to be known as the National Mobile Radio system, will tie together independent radio-telephone stations that operate message-type services. You talk to the operator of the station from your automobile telephone and the operator delivers your message by regular telephone or telegraph. Or the operator calls you and gives you a message someone has telephoned to her.

Officials of the National Mobile Radio system say their service is of a different type and does not compete with the direct conversation service operated by the telephone companies. It also costs less.

Both types are post-war developments so far as the general public is concerned.

The object of the new network, say the sponsors, is to enable a Boston station, for instance, to reach a subscriber with a message if he happens to be in the New York area or en route. It also would enable him to keep in touch with his home or office while driving in another area.

The plans are to send the messages from city to city on teletype circuits leased from the telephone companies, although stations could pass messages from one to another if close enough together.

The new organization is headed by Norman W. Medlar, operator of a station at White Plains, N. Y. The membership this far is made up mostly of stations in the eastern half of the country. William S. Halstead, head of communications. Research corporation of New York has been engaged as consultant in developing network operating techniques.

Officials of the new organization expect at least 100 stations to be in the network by late 1950. First network operations are scheduled to begin in late August.

Spacious Kitchens Boon To Congeniality

Big, spacious kitchens, where all the family can congregate for food and talk, are making a comeback.

For a long time it looked as though the roomy kitchen, exuding appetizing odors and comfortable warmth, was slated for extinction. Architects with space-saving on their minds, were squeezing stove, sink and ice box into wall closets, cabinets and similar cubicles.

Now along comes Architect Harvey Wiley Corbett of New York, who says the kitchen is the most important room in the house — and should be one of the most spacious. Even if you have to cut down the living room to achieve it, make a big kitchen, he urges.

"Watch the way things to at any informal party," Corbett says. "Where do the poople tend to gather and talk for hours? In the kitchen. It's a natural gathering place."

Corbett thinks it's silly in these days, when domestics are both expensive and in short supply, to have the guests penned in the living room while the hostess is exiled getting things ready in the kitchen.

"I say have a big kitchen and bring the guests in to watch the meal in preparation," he argues. "You pay fancy prices in French restaurants to have them bring out the cooking equipment and prepare a meal before your eyes. Why not bring your guests into the kitchen for the same reason?"

The New York architect also believes that the prize view from the house should be reserved for big kitchen windows.

"After all," he reasons, "the housewife spends more of the day in her kitchen than in any other room. Why shouldn't she have something attractive to look out on? Or, if there are young children, she's probably happier to have a view of the play yard, so she can keep an eye on the kids."

If Corbett has his way, the kitchen will be furnished with comfortable chairs, a divan and a fireplace.

"A fireplace makes a room more attractive," he said. "But that isn't all. We are so completely dependent on public utilities that in event of an electricity or gas shut-off, we are pretty helpless. With a fireplace in the kitchen and a supply of wood in the cellar, a family can cook and keep warm in the same place."

He favors such accessories as magazine racks, pictures and flowers in the modern kitchen, but he's not sold on radio and television sets in the room.

"This is a personal opinion," he says, "but I think people should be interested in what they're doing and not take their minds off the job at hand with radio or television."

AMPLE KITCHEN SPACE—This kitchen at the home of J. H. Petree, 547 Yale drive, is new and fully modern, but it does not lack space for informal parties and evening snacks. The convenience of a comfortably large kitchen is demonstrated when five gals and a guy (who seems to have more than his share of feminine pulchritude) drop in at the Petree home for refrshments after a hot game of tennis. They are (lower photo, left to right) Betsy Clark, Marilyn Williams, Barbara Freeland, Martha Bell, Marilyn Wittmer and Jay Carr. Members of the same party are shown (top photo) in relaxed poses. Marilyn Williams, niece of Mrs. Petree, knew the spacious kitchen would be just the place to go for rest and refreshments.

Condensation On Pipes Cut By Insulation

Moisture condensation on cold water pipes in summer and slow arrival of hot water to an open faucet in winter can both be cured by proper insulation.

Condensation results when warm, humid air strikes the cold pipe, causing drops of water to form. It is most frequently observed on exposed pipes in basements in summer, but is even more insidious when it remains undiscovered on hidden pipes. It often becomes quite serious when pipes are hidden beneath floors or in walls, for the water drip will damage plaster.

The cure is to wrap exposed pipes with mineral wool insulation or molded insulating jackets. For pipes in floors, the remedy is to close all openings through which warm house air can reach the piping.

The same insulation that prevents condensation on cold pipes in summer will keep hot water pipes from cooling rapidly in winter and result in a substantial fuel saving for the water heater.

Bucyrus Cuts Mishap Rate

BUCYRUS — Lt. Charles E. Ghist, Bucyrus police department safety officer, stated Saturday he believed improved traffic control measures are responsible for a sharp decrease in traffic accidents occurring here in the first six months of 1949 compared with the same period in 1948.

Sine Jan. 1, a total of 161 accidents have been reported to police while a year ago, the accident total was 214.

The total of persons injured in accidents also has dropped sharply. A year ago, 30 persons had been injured while this year's total is only 15.

Two persons have been injured fatally in traffic accidents this year, the same number as recorded for the first six months of 1948.

Well-Planned Ranch-Type House Easily Expanded

By HENRY J. WINGATE
Architectural Engineer

An expansible house will solve the problem of a small family requiring more space in a few years but whose financial means at the moment limits the present size of the house.

Most familiar type of expansible house is the 4-room Cape Cod house with attic which can be finished later, but expansion need not be limited to this design. The one-story ranch-house can be expanded to a three-or four-bedroom structure almost as easily as the Cape Cod.

An expansible house must be first planned as a complete unit, the way the owner wants it to appear eventually. It is then separated into its logical parts and the sequence of additions determined, always with the thought in mind that the house must be complete in appearance and function at each step.

BASIC FACILITIES

The basic unit must provide all facilities for the normal life of a small family, including living-room, bedroom, bath, dining area, kitchen, storage space, heating and laundry facilities. Some rooms can serve two purposes.

Additions should be designed so that there is little disturbance to the family while new building is in progress, so that no space is wasted, and so that there is always convenient traffic flow from room to room.

Openings for later additions should be framed for their final purpose when the basic house is built, such as installation of a window in the space framed for a future door. Pipes, ducts and wiring needed for future additions should be roughed into the basic house to save money on ripping out and rebuilding. Mineral wool insulation can be installed at low cost in each section of the house as it is added.

Frame construction lends itself best to low-priced additions, and although the cost of building a house in several stages ordinarily is slightly more than building it all at once, careful planning will hold down costs.

CHECK COMMUNITY RULES

The increased over-all cost is usually offset by savings in maintenance, interest, taxes and insurance between the time of building the basic unit and the later additions. The owner also will benefit by any decrease in construction costs between the two stages.

Before planning an expansible house, the owner should carefully examine zoning ordinances and restrictions in deeds because these may control the size and price of the house. Many communities prohibit small houses. Conversely, an expansible house should not be erected in a neighborhood of small homes where the completed house would overshadow the other houses, as this has a tendency to lower its value in event of sale.

London Blind 'See' Popular Science Exhibit In Museum

LONDON — (AP) — If you can see, you can't get into the London Science Museum's popular science exhibition. It's for the blind alone. They "see" with their hands.

The museum thinks it is the first one of its kind anywhere in the world.

Officials got the idea when a blind boy — surrounded by magnificent exhibits in glass cases — asked what was the good of a museum to him. He couldn't see the exhibits, he said, and e couldn't touch them. All he could do was listen to a guide.

Officials gave him some valuable exhibits to handle — and took the lesson to heart. Next day they hauled out scores of choice items and arranged them on tables in a special room. The National Institute for the Blind hastened to provide descriptive labels in braille. Now the exhibition is thronged every day.

The exhibition for the blind has everything from a three-foot replica of an ancient Egyptian chariot wheel to the real thing in spitfire aircraft engines. There are models of aircraft, locomotives and ships, an old spinning wheel, hand looms, mine rescue apparatus, tuning forks, a 14th century axe. They all are strange and wonderful to the sightless.

The museum isn't afraid the exhibits will be damaged. The blind have a feather touch.

"Seeing" the exhibition is a two - handed job. Visitors use their left hand to read the braille description while their right races over the exhibit.

Not all, however, go away happy.

Attendants saw one youngster "looking" at a model yacht. His hands strayed over the pencil-like mast. Suddenly he stiffened. Then he ran, his face contorted with fear and tears.

His escort told the story. The boy was blinded in the war when he tried to dismantle a tiny German "butterfly" bomb he found in his backyard.

The last thing the boy touched before the explosion was the pencil-like detonator.

It would take about 3,000,000 earths to equal the bulk of the sun.

3-Year-Old Boy Injured

Three-year-old Thomas Yarger, 82 Dawson avenue, was injured when struck by a car in front of 100 Dawson avenue at 5 p. m. yesterday.

The youngster received a broken pelvis and abrasions on the back of the head when he ran in front of an auto driven by Blaine Johnson, 68, 121 Dawson avenue. Johnson said the boy ran from behind a parked car. The child was taken to General hospital.

Mrs. Ralph Leppla, 25, of Shaker Heights, received abrasions on the arm when the car in which she was riding with her husband, Ralph J. Leppla, 26, collided with one driven by John A. Yoder, 19, Baltic, R. D. 1., at the corner of Park avenue east and Adams street. The accident occurred at 7:30 p. m. according to police.

Federal Aid to States Still Climbing

Claims 5% Slice of '49 Budget

Sets Postwar Record For Grants

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Federal money grants to states are on the increase despite recent attacks against them.

Five per cent of the federal budget for the fiscal year just beginning — or $2,458,202,000 — is set aside for them.

It's a postwar record in grants - although still short of the $2,908,999,000 record high for such outlays in prewar 1939.

But the new 'fiscal year's planned allocation for states is a 20,000-fold increase from the first grants 70 years ago.

The whole idea of federal grants to states came in for some sharp criticism recently from former President Herbert Hoover. He said they will lead to "dictatorship" over the states.

Then Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said he couldn't see why the government should pay school aid money to all states, suggesting only the poor ones get it. Eisenhower, now Columbia university president, said we must be careful that "believers in paternalism" don't get control over public schools.

And former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, long a Democratic party stalwart, spoke of "too many people trying to transfer power to the government" and warned of the danger of a "welfare state."

However, the state grants are just as strongly defended in many quarters as a way to get done things which the public wants and would not otherwise get.

President Hoover's commission on government reorganization says grants are "definitely on the increase." Federal officials point out one good reason the trend is unlikely to be reversed is that the states now get from federal grants 15 cents out of every dollar they spend.

It was back in 1879 that the federal government came through with its first cash grant —$125.000 for raised-letter books for the blind

Like other grants since, these were funds the federal government raised through its own tax collections and turned over to the states to spend.

By 1902 the cost of grants had grown to about $3,000,000 It included such items as: $1,005.000 for state homes for veterans, a program started about 1888; $1.-200.000 for state agriculture and mechanical schools, started about 1891, and $786,000 for state agriculture experiment stations.

By 1920 highway construction had become the big item. It accounted for $20.483.000 of the $43.-445.000 total of federal grants to states that year.

Not until the New Deal came along with its big depression-combatting social welfare programs did the grants vault into the billions class.

From $200.933.000 in fiscal 1933, the cost jumped in a single year to $1 848 079.000. The big items in fiscal 1934 were $805.123.-000 for the civil works administration and $707.352 000 for the Federal Emergency Relief Administration to spend on pump priming and relief

Nowadays the social welfare and health program (old age pensions, aid to the blind etc) is by far the biggest state grant item, taking up $1.359.000 000 or about 58 per cent of the grants.

THREE LEVELS—This modern home, constructed on three levels, solves the problem faced by a home-owner who desires to build on a sloping plot of ground. The garage is on the top level, and serves as the main entrance, being a part of the house with a connecting door to the interior.

* * *

Clever Design Overcomes Problems of Hillside Lot

Design of this home may be a happy solution for the owner of a hillside property who hesitates to build on the sloping plot. Erected on a hillside with incline of 45 degrees from front to rear, this house was built on three levels. The garage, on the top level serves as the principal entrance to the home. Ten steps lead down from the garage to the living-dining-room, from which three large bedrooms open. A second entrance is available from the lower level Stairs from the living quarters to the lower level are concealed by low built-in bookshelves in the living-room. Modern in every detail of design and construction, this house has reinforced concrete foundations, walls and roof are fully insulated with mineral wool, and the exterior walls are stone, brick and marine-type plywood, topped by a flat roof with broad, overhanging eaves. The flat roof design makes full-thick insulation especially important for summer comfort, while the exposed hillside location requires complete wall insulation as well, to reduce winter fuel bills Windows of living-room and dining alcove extend from floor to ceiling. A 26-foot screened porch, opening off the living-dining-room, overlooks a beautiful valley The master bedroom can be made part of the living-room by sliding back large flush doors in the wall between The beds slide out of sight into a space beneath the stairs which lead down from the garage. Windows are double-glazed with a 3-inch air space between the panes The house, built at a cost of $15,000, is heated with gas-fired forced warm air and a huge 42-inch exhaust fan in the entrance stairwell provides ventilation

Hard To Get Tickets For Stage Shows

Broadway Brokers Taking Measures

NEW YORK — (AP) — This is one of those seasons on Broadway where there exists a bevy of bountiful shows such as "South Pacific," "Kiss Me, Kate," "Death of a Salesman" and "Mr. Roberts" — and a dearth of tickets in the boxoffices for the hits.

With such a large number of sell-out shows at this time of the theater season when normally there are very few shows with box office appeal, a point has been reached where Commissioner of Investigation John M. Murtagh of the municipal government is probing the methods of ticket brokers in distributing tickets to the general public.

Under the New York state law of 1937 a ticket broker can charge a commission of 75 cents for handling a ticket to an average Broadway show. The same law also says he can charge 50 cents for handling a balcony seat, but few of the Broadway agents deal with balcony seats except as a favor for a regular customer.

As specified in the code of the League of New York Theaters, 25 per cent of the seats in a Broadway theater must be retained for sale in the box office where the show is playing and 75 per cent of the tickets may be allotted to the ticket brokers for sale through agencies.

In the latter case, the amount of tickets each agency gets is determined by the amount of sales each agency did on previous shows. Most Manhattan hotels, which handle most of the tickets which out of town visitors buy, have one of the responsible ticket agencies as part of their hotel service. The same is true of large industrial corporations which have facilities to provide entertainment for visitors from out of New York.

DRAFT OWN RULES

Ticket brokers themselves are taking measures to regulate sale of tickets, and 34 of the now existent 44 ticket agencies on Broadway are organized and have assigned Jesse Moss, former assistant federal district attorney, to the task of setting down the regulations which will guide the ticket brokers in their efforts to get more hit show tickets to the public.

"The brokers wish to point out that there are only two or three great hits a year on the average," Moss said, "and the theater depends upon the broker to push the sale of tickets to the fair and mediocre play. The life of the theater is not dependent upon a high level of sales to a public which is interested in the theater in general and in supporting it . . . the theater ticket broker has a difficult customer problem because he finds overwhelming requests for the few seats available for the one or two hit shows of each year."

One measure already taken in the hope that it may open the way to a solution of the ticket problem is that at the hit shows — such as "South Pacific," "Kiss Me, Kate" and "Death of a Salesman" — there will be an "open week" every fifth week when no seats will be allotted the agencies.

The ticket brokers argue that the main part of their business is the service they give individuals and corporations who want tickets at specified times for groups who are visiting New York on short notice. They contend that one of the main reasons they are in business is that they are able to produce theater tickets in an emergency.

Dies After Long Fall

AGAWAM, MASS. — (AP) — A trapeze artist killed in a 60-foot plunge from a tight wire at Riverside amusement park was identified Saturday as Edward Temple, 41, of Nashua, N. H.

Identification was made by his wife, Shirley, and Ethan J. Sweeney of Nashua, a long-time friend.

Temple performed under the name of Eddy Polo. Sweeney said the trapeze artist had used the name since 1924.

Temple was killed Friday night when the wire snapped as he was sliding — by his hair — down a 45-degree angle from a 135-foot tower. He died shortly after being admitted to Springfield hospital.

Temple at first was believed to have been the famous star of the silent movies and serials of that name. He was booked and signed a contract under the name of Eddie Polo.

But the real Eddy Polo was located in Los Angeles, very much alive. He explained he allowed Temple to use his name after he learned he was an actor "trying to struggle along."

SERVICE CUT OFF

STEUBENVILLE — (AP) — Nearby Rayland's 700 residents were without telephone service for five hours Friday afternoon after an automobile driven by Paul L. Egner, 31, of Mingo Junction, knocked down a telephone line pole near Tiltonsville.

STUDIES SCRIPT—Nick Psacharopoulos, native of Athens, Greece, writer, director, and actor for six years, who plans to assist Harold McCuen in the direction of the Children's Theatre here in Mansfield, looks over the script for "Our Town," a play being considered for staging here.

Greek Youth Wants To Join Theater Staff

Harold McCuen, director of the Mansfield Children's Theater, is expecting some expert help this summer from a Greek youth who has been visiting in Mansfield.

His prospective assistant is Nick Psacharopoulos, native of Athens, who wants to live in Mansfield and help with the theater project this summer if he can find a job.

Nick and McCuen met several weeks ago and the Greek youth showed marked interest in the children's program here. He comes to the city occasionally to visit in the Albert Meiback home at 985 Park avenue west.

Nick came from Athens in 1947 to use a scholarship he received from Oberlin college. He has one more year to go before receiving a degree at Oberlin.

"My intention is to study English and fine arts, and then go to Yale for a masters degree in theatre and writing," he said.

Nick's theatrical career goes back six years, when at the age of 15 he wrote, directed, and acted a small part in his first play, "Noumerakia." This play consisted of a series of complete scenes.

His theatrical work in this country has included the direction of the Mummer's club, a dramatic club at Oberlin, and the writing and direction of an introductory movie to the stage play, "The Second Square." He also has given numerous lectures to various groups.

He is planning a play to be done with arena staging for the Workshop Players of the Children's Theatre. Arena staging is done on a stage moved into the audience.

Curtain Call

Former Mansfielder Serves As Mummers' Guild Manager

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Former Mansfielder James Hoeffler has his hands full as production manager on the Mummers Guild Board of the University of Cincinnati.

Hoeffler, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hoeffler, formerly of 44 Marion avenue, will coordinate all phases of the back stage work for the dramatic group during its winter season at the university.

He will also personally supervise the construction of the sets for the three plays scheduled for the next season.

No new - comer to the dramatic group, Hoeffler worked on the sets last year and assisted in the construction of the musical comedy scenery. In addition he has taken part in several plays put on by the Laboratory Theater, a group of students taking dramatic courses.

With an eye to the new season, he has already laid plans for the first production of "Golden Boy" which will probably feature the first unit set seen on the Mummers' stage. The second production will be Maxwell Anderson's "High Thor", a drama- comedy which requires the presence of a steam shovel on the stage. Third production of the season will be either a modern comedy or a new play never before tried out on the stage.

Hoeffler, a former St. Peter's high school pupil is the nephew of Mrs. R. M. Varney, 533 Park avenue west and Robert Hoeffler, 130 Helen avenue. His father is the west central district merchandise manager for Westinghouse Electric Supply company. The Hoefflers are at present residing at 3521 Victoria place, Cincinnati, 8.

Mansfielder Appears In Play Cast

William McGraw, 266 Helen avenue, currently is appearing as a member of the cast of "The Taming of the Shrew" being presented at Holiday Stage, Tustin, Calif.

McGraw was invited to go by Contessa Ivy H. Kean Carmichael, head of publicity at Hollywood Stage, and head of the drama department at Los Angeles City college.

The next production at Holiday Stage will be "Susan and God."

STINE

TEE TIME

By Charley Stine

(News-Journal Sports Writer)

Mansfield golfdom is about to embark on its biggest week in history with the Ohio Amateur scheduled to start at Westbrook tomorrow.

Only one hitch has come up in the affair so far The disqualification of Bernie Mathias last week left a bad taste in some mouths and started the thing off on the wrong foot It is not too late, however, to finish on a harmonious note

Friction between public and private clubs is a natural and unavoidable thing We wonder, however, if Al Hager didn't have the solution in an observation he made the other day while waiting to play a practice round

Said Hager "I wanted to play in the Ohio Public links tournament but they wouldn't let me Why then should public linkers be eligible to play in the Ohio Golf association (Private club) tournament?"

Hager readily agreed that the OGA joust couldn't be called the Ohio Amateur without the public linksters but he had an answer for that.

"How about a Public Links tournament, a Private club tournament and then a REAL Ohio Amateur with an equal representation from both groups?"

As the situation stands now, the OGA takes it upon itself to settle the Ohio Amateur as it sees fit One OGA official even went so far as to say that it was through the 'OGA's graciousness' that Public Links players were allowed in at all

How, fellows could you decide a state champion if more than half of the golfers in the state were barred? You would not decide the state basketball title by having a tournament of only private schools.

★

Mansfield golfers will have to choose between the opening of the 72-hole Akron District medal tournament and the Amateur-Amateur best-ball of the Mansfield Athletic commission next Sunday

The ADGA affair extends over a four-week period and so far as we have been able to determine, only one Mansfielder will compete That is Arnie Adams who will play for the Junior (under 21) title Arnie would like very much to play in the local affair but says this is his last chance to enter a junior meet

★

Picking up his ball in the State Public links and the disqualification by the OGA cost Bernie Mathias $75 That is the amount he estimates he spent trying to get into the Ohio "Am" The $75 includes entry and green fees to four ADGA bestballs, transportation meals, an entry fee in the State Public links and transportation, meals, and hotel bill there

Westbrook's annual caddy tournament is to begin as soon as the Amateur is finished Qualifiers were held early last week and three flights planned Eight are expected to be put in the championship flight with 16 in the second and 16 in the third

Jimmy Hager was the leading qualified with 35x40—75, while Bud Barth came in with 40 37—77 Charles Vandlik had 45 33—88 Dean Hahn 42-42—64 Paul Smollen 44-43—87 and Bob Scadova 47 42—89 Defending champion Larry Inscore did not have to qualify

The Westbrook champ, as always will get a berth in the National Caddy tournament to be held at Columbus in August

Bobby Locke Easily Wins British Open

SANDWICH England — (AP) — Bobby Locke the South African who polished his game on U S courses, slaughtered Harry Bradshaw of Ireland yesterday to win the British open golf title by 12 strokes

The two were tied with record equalling 283 s after 72 holes over the sandy windswept royal St George s course In the play off, only the sixth since 1860, Locke put together rounds of 67 68—135 Bradshaw countered meekly with 74-73—147 Par is 72

Bradshaw, pro at a Dublin course, fell behind Locke at the fifth hole of the morning round and the heavy-jowled South African never let up At lunch he was seven strokes to the good.

Most of the 2 000 followers admitted they were staying only to see when Locke approaching with deadly accuracy would get his first five It came on the thirty third hole a par five test All other figures on his card were either 3's or 4 s

After it was all over Locke said he would cancel exhibitions in the U S and would remain in England for six weeks or two months He begins an English tour today However, he will return to the U S this fall

Big Walker Cooper Likes Fences at Reds' Ball Yard

By TERRY FLYNN

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Big Walker Cooper has a simple explanation for his sensational hitting as a Cincinnati Red, especially during the past week

"I'm a late starter," the 208-pound catcher said yesterday, "and what's more, these Cincinnati fences are friendly to me"

Cooper hit three homers against the Chicago Cubs Wednesday and another against the same club Thursday Each of the circuit blasts went over the left-center or center field wall

"In the Polo Grounds at New York, those hits would have been easy outs," said Coop, who came from the New York Giants in a trade for Redleg Roy Mueller.

Although the distance down the left field line at the Polo Grounds is only 279 feet the field fans out and runs 484 feet from home plate to the center field extremity

Many of Cooper s left-center and center field smashes at New York were caught on the fly but here they carry over the wall which measures from 382 to 387 feet Not a pull hitter Cooper lines out most of his drives to left-center and center

But there must be something more to it than the 'friendliness" of the Cincinnati fences Cooper has boosted his batting average 46 points from the 211 he was hitting on arrival from the Giants on June 14

CAN'T 'SEE' LIP

It was no secret that Cooper didn't get along with Giant Manager Leo Durocher In New York he spoke out publicly against 'The Lip," but not so these days

"Leo had me on the bench because I was in a slump," Cooper asserted "Well, you can't get out of a slump sitting on the bench It kind of shows it since my arrival here"

Cooper who hopes to "stay in Cincinnati for a long time" has driven in 21 runs in 20 games for the Reds the same number he batted in for the Giants in 43 games earlier in the season

He hit the jackpot Wednesday with 10 RBI's on three homers and three singles in seven trips to the plate

'My best year on knocking in runs was 121 with the Giants in 1947," Cooper said "Who knows, with things going like they have, maybe I'll do better than that this year"

Snead, Middlecoff Tied for Lead In Open Tourney

READING, Pa — (AP) — Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W Va , and Cary Middlecoff, of Memphis, Tenn , the golfers who have cleaned up almost everything in sight this season, were all square yesterday after three rounds of the $15 000 Reading open

Middlecoff, playing a near-perfect round wiped out the one stroke lead Snead held Friday by shooting a five-under par 65 to Slammin' Sammy's 66 So after 54 holes each had an aggregate of 200 strokes ten under par for that distance over the 6 001 yard par 70 Reading Country club course

Middlecoff the National Open champion, got there with three successive sub-par rounds 67, 68 and 65 Snead, the PGA champ and leading money-winner of the 1949 season by a margin of about $300 over Middlecoff had rounds of 63 71, and 66 Four strokes behind them going into today s final round, is Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N J Ghezzi who had been tied with Snead at the halfway mark couldn t beat par and trailed at 69 65 70—204
